Snowman in Florida

This eight-foot snowman should have "Made in Florida" label because that is where it was built today. Howard Black had two tons of shaved ice delivered to his front yard as treat for children. After snowball fight Black's daughter, Durelle, left, and Charlene Norwood built this "stranger".

WASHINGTON PLANS PROTEST

U.S. Embassy Stoned By 3,000 Bulgarians

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced it "is making a strong protest" and demanding compensation for the damage a mob of 3,000 Bulgarians caused at the U.S. legation in Sofia today.

LONDON FOG CUTS TRAFFIC TO CRAWL

LONDON (CP)—Dense fog today reduced road traffic to a crawl in and around London and visibility over a wide area of southern England was down to as low as 10 yards.

Many incoming flights to London Airport were diverted and all departing services were delayed. Trains were running behind schedule in many places.

Fog and ice were blamed for many highway accidents which took the highest Christmas toll in four years—at least 91 dead since Christmas Eve.

In Holland, dense fog brought shipping and air travel to a standstill and roads were slippery after a severe morning frost.

'Last-Hope' Treatment For Child

AJACCIO, Corsica (Reuters)—A French doctor today authorized a local healer to give a "last hope" treatment to a four-year-old leukemia-stricken British boy.

The boy, Edward Burke, and his mother arrived Sunday to seek the help of the healer, Gaston Maessens, who claims to have developed a serum to treat the disease.

British Vice-Consul William Snook, who said earlier the boy would have to return home if no doctor was found to authorize the arrangement, said the treatment would begin this afternoon and last 40 days.

Maessens is a biologist and has no doctor's degree.

Thursday night more than 3,000 demonstrators marched to the home of the local chief administrative officer, Andre Bussieres, in protest against the failure of any doctor to authorize the treatment.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (Reuters)—An estimated 3,000 shouting and booing Bulgarians demonstrated outside the U.S. legation here today, smashing most of the windows on the first three floors and overturning four American diplomatic cars.

The rioters were eventually dispersed by local militiamen.

The hour-long demonstration, which began at 11 a.m., was in protest against alleged American intelligence activity revealed in the spy trial of a former diplomat which began here Thursday.

The demonstrators shouted anti-American slogans and pelted the front windows of the

legation in the heart of the city with ice, frozen snow and stones.

The crowd numbered about 500 at the start but grew to around 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, a U.S. legation official said.

"The demonstrators made no attempt to enter the legation and nobody in the legation was hurt," he said.

'Flew My Mistress From Paris to U.S.'

SOFIA, Bulgaria (Reuters)—A former Bulgarian diplomat to the United Nations, who Thursday pleaded guilty to spying for the United States, said today American intelligence flew his mistress from Paris to the U.S. three times during the seven years he was a spy.

Ivan-Assen Georgiev, 56, told the court on the second day of his trial the American taxpayer was forced to pay the cost of his "caprice."

'WORSE' THAN LAKONIA FIRE

Interview Rocks Captain

MADRID (Reuters)—Capt. Mateos Zarbis, Greek skipper of the ill-fated liner Lakonia, broke down here today as reporters bombarded him with questions.

Saying "no more . . . no more," he sat on a bench and covered his face with his hands.

The captain had just landed at Madrid airport from Tenerife, Canary Islands, on his way to Athens.

In the airport lounge he answered questions about his ship, which caught fire in the northeast Atlantic Sunday night. Latest estimate of the dead is 96, with 31 persons missing.

One of the first questions was "were the rescue operations good?"

Zarbis said briefly: "Partly good."

He was asked to explain what he meant by this statement. He replied:

"If early enough I had had three or four rescue ships alongside the ship then all would have been well. The rescue ships picked up people from the sea but did not come near the Lakonia—that was the drama."

THOUGHT ALL IN SEA

Asked whether he thought the ships did not come in close because of the danger from the fire, Zarbis answered: "No. They probably thought there were no one left on board."

Asked how the disaster happened, he said:

"I know how the fire started, but we do know where it started. We controlled it for a long time. I waited an hour and a half before giving the order to abandon ship."

At one point the captain tried to stop the questions by saying:

FREIGHTER OVERDUE 6 DAYS; 50 ABOARD

MADRID (AP)—Spanish authorities issued an alarm today for the 7,072-ton Spanish freighter Castillo de Montjuich, six days overdue on a voyage from Boston to La Coruna.

Between 40 and 50 men were aboard the ship.

The Spanish cruiser Canarias and two frigates searched the Atlantic for the ship.

TO RUSSIA

U.S. Licences Wheat Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. commerce department has issued conditional licences for the sale of $40,600,000 worth of wheat to Russia but whether there will be an agreement remains to be seen.

WIRE BRIEFS

Emergency in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A state of emergency was in force Thursday in Kenya's troubled northeast region in the wake of border tensions with the neighboring Somali Republic.

Mediation Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced its acceptance today of Philippine government offer to mediate a dispute between Washington and the neutralist government of Cambodia. (See story Page 5.)

Chou in Morocco

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai arrived in this pro-western Arab nation from Algeria today on the third stop of his tour of Africa.

Won't Testify

PARIS (AP)—Ex-Col. Antoine Argoud, on trial for treason before the state security court, refused to answer questions today about circumstances of his alleged kidnapping in West Germany and transfer to Paris last February.

Two-Train Crash

TEL AVIV (AP)—Fifty-five persons were injured, 10 seriously, in a two-train collision today on the Tel Aviv-Haifa railway line near Nathanya, north of this Israeli capital.

Hearing Concluded

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Claude Wagner today concluded the preliminary hearing of Professor Roland Hamont, charged with capital murder in the Oct. 20 propane gas explosion deaths of his wife and two daughters. Judge Wagner said he will decide between now and Jan. 3 whether Prof. Hamont should be committed to trial or liberated.

SAM'S HOME!

Twisted Tale of Two Dachshunds Concludes on Tail-Wagging Note

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sam the misplaced dachshund, travelling as a diplomatic pouch, returned here from Africa today and like the rest of his mixed up experiences caught everyone by surprise.

A change of flight plans saw Sam arriving by transatlantic plane from Conakry, Guinea, two hours and 20 minutes earlier than expected.

With no one on hand to meet him, Sam was carted unceremoniously from the airport to his new home, cage numbered 2056203, and kept in an airline office until his master Maxwell C. Moulton arrived.

Moulton, along with more newsmen and photographers than normally greet arriving dogs, turned up late.

All who survived th' Merry Christmas are now eligible to try for th' Happy New Year.

It'll be nice to get away from all th' happy season's accolades, fires, sinkings and deaths an' back to jist simple political tragedies.

CABINET SESSION

No Changes Today —Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet met today for what Prime Minister Pearson said is likely to be a day-long session, its second since Parliament prorogued last weekend.

Mr. Pearson, looking rested after a five-day Christmas holiday, said there may be announcements late today but nothing of great significance.

He joked with reporters about the possibilities of a cabinet shuffle, saying there would be none today.

"I haven't been reading the papers over the holiday and there's been a good deal of speculation about it. Until I find out what you expect me to do, how can I know what to do?"

He said there may be some appointments. There won't be any new senators named. There are five vacancies in the Senate.

Mr. Pearson spent the Christmas holiday in the Toronto area with his daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren and proudly told reporters he was playing hockey two days ago on skates.

Life gradually was returning to normal in the Greek sector.

Fire Still Burning On U.S. Freighter

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP)—in the No. 4 hold and asked for assistance off the coast of Boso Peninsula about 25 miles outside Tokyo Bay.

There were no reports of casualties among 52 crew and seven passengers, the agency said.

But it added that the fire had not been put out several hours after the outbreak.

The agency said the 7,924-ton American President Line's vessel radioed the outbreak of fire

NICOSIA, Cyprus—British patrols moved through Nicosia today to keep the peace on explosive Cyprus, but disagreement delayed plans for Greek and Turkish soldiers to join them.

At the southeast port of Larnaca, a British soldier was shot and slightly wounded in the shoulder while on a similar patrol. The patrols are designed primarily for the protection of British civilians.

In Nicosia, however, the British were waved through roadblocks of both Greek and Turkish armed Cypriots, whose fighting in five bloody days beginning last Saturday caused grave international concern.

Commanders of the British, Greek and Turkish garrisons stationed on this eastern Mediterranean island met in the morning but were unable to agree on the composition of the mixed patrols.

"We have British patrols out, whose primary purpose is to protect British families," Maj.-Gen. P. S. F. Young, British army commander on Cyprus, told reporters after the meeting.

Young said there were no Greek and Turkish army patrols out and it would take longer to organize them because of language difficulties.

STAY IN GARRISONS

The small Turkish and Greek army garrisons remained at opposite ends of this capital. Their movement from their treaty bases into Nicosia Christmas Day led to fears of a showdown that might embroil Greece and Turkey, both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Greek and Turkish Cypriots generally have observed the Christmas Day cease-fire, ending a conflict that began Saturday with an exchange of gunfire between a Greek Cypriot police patrol and Turkish Cypriots.

But a few shots still could be heard at times from the northeast sector of the border dividing the Greek and Turkish Cypriot sectors of Nicosia as the first British column entered the Turkish sector.

Meanwhile, the first reinforcements ordered from Britain Thursday by Prime Minister Douglas-Home landed at the British Akrotiri base. Their number was not given. A headquarters spokesman said they will replace troops in the base areas ordered to duty in Nicosia and elsewhere.

Life gradually was returning to normal in the Greek sector.

Mile-Long Procession

LONDON (Reuters)—Nearly 4,000 Turkish Cypriots, among them women carrying children, marched today four abreast to the prime minister's official residence here to hand in a petition calling for an end to violence on Cyprus.

The procession, a mile long, was organized by the Cyprus-Turkish Association in London.

ATHENS (Reuters)—Thousands of angry Greek students paraded through the streets of Athens and Salonica today in support of Greeks currently involved in communal conflict with Turks on Cyprus.

Police in both cities were ordered to stand by to prevent disturbances arising from the rallies.

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)

Turkish students protesting against violence in Cyprus marched to the office of Premier Ismet Inonu here today and shouted "annexation or death."

Inonu received a delegation and told them to be calm.

Tass Charges Takeover

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass news agency accused the British today of trying to take over Cyprus and asserted events on that troubled island threaten "a serious international conflict."

The article bore the dateline of Nicosia but as is usual in these cases, probably represented the work of the agency editorial board in adding semi-official comment.

The article said the British commander demanded that all Greek and Turkish police and troops on the divided island surrender their arms. It added:

"The aim of this order is clear: To disarm not only the terrorists but also the security forces of the republic. They want to make the Makarios government a captive of the British colonialists and of the most aggressive NATO forces."

HAZARD, Ky.—They don't have Christmas in Kentucky.

There's no holly on a West Virginia door,
For the trees don't twinkle when you're hungry,
And the jingle bells don't jingle when you're poor."

Some heard that carol on the sidewalks of New York, and other cities, and it brought them to the Snowy Mountains of Eastern Kentucky bearing gifts.

The gifts went to impoverished families of miners. The decline of the coal business has made this area one of the most economically depressed in the U.S.

"They just needed help desperately," said Diane Glasser, 17, a student at Hunter College in New York City.

Forty students distributed food, clothing, money and toys.

The students collected funds at their campuses. They came from New York, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania.

With them was Phil Ochs, 23, a folk singer from New York's Greenwich Village and composer of the carol which inspired the mission of mercy.

"Most of us never had come into contact with a situation like this before," said Alma Roy, 19, a student at New York's Barnard College.

"We have been amazed and gratified by the warmth with which we have been greeted," said Joel Fredericson, 19, a student at New York's Columbia College.

The students ate simple Christmas dinners with the miners' families.

At one gathering, eggs, cake and coffee were among the main items, and then there was a hootenanny.

VATICAN CITY—The little white lamb Pope Paul received as a Christmas present will find a home at the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, 15 miles south of Rome.

An unidentified girl presented the animal to the Pontiff when he celebrated Christmas mass at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, in workers' quarter on the outskirts of Rome.

The Pope, 66, visibly moved, lifted the lamb over his head to show it to the crowd outside the church. Then he handed it to an aide.

GLASGOW—U.S. sailors arriving for duty at the Polaris submarine base in Holy Loch, Scotland, are strongly advised, among other things, not to call a Scottish soldier's kilt a skirt.

A manual issued by the U.S. fleet post office in the interests of good relations lists other "don'ts," including:

Don't call the Scottish people English.

And don't call the Scots Scotch.

The manual points out that some British army regiments from Scotland wear the kilt as part of their uniform.

"Though it may look like a skirt to you, don't say so," says the book.

The final admonition to the newly-arrived sailors says: "Don't bring up the revolution and the Boston Tea Party, for that was quite a way back."

"Play up the British in the Second World War. They fought this one out alone for quite a while, and lost 250,000 men. The United States with three times the population lost 313,000."

YAKIMA, Wash.—Being strapped for ready cash is a common plight the day after Christmas. A Yakima bank found itself in that situation Thursday.

When the Yakima Valley branch of the National Bank of Washington closed for the holiday the time lock on the vault was accidentally set for the usual weekend period.

The vault didn't open until today. The bank borrowed enough cash from other banks to carry on local business Thursday.

LONDON—"I'm fed up with silly old Santa," said Peter May, 6, weeping on Christmas Day because he received two left-hand gloves.

But his father, salesman John May, telephoned the British Broadcasting Corp. and a call went on the air asking if any listeners had, by any chance, received two right-hand gloves.

May's efforts contributed further to ruin the reputation of Santa Claus. A BBC spokesman said several persons telephoned and offered to swap one of the two right-hand gloves they had received.

LONDON—Terence Cutts, the Houdini of British prisons, engineered a Christmas Day escape—his 15th—and still is at large, police sources said today.

The 35-year-old escape artist, sentenced to 10 years in October, 1950, scaled a wall at Brixton Prison with a rope to make his getaway Christmas Night at a time when security precautions had been slackened, the sources said.

Cutts, described as "the man no jail can hold," has made seven prison breaks and eight escapes from detention schools.

U.S. Protests Killing Of Refugee on the Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—The United States protested to Russia today against the Christmas Day killing by Communist border guards of a refugee scaling the Berlin wall.

An American spokesman said the protest was sent by Martin Hillenbrand, chargé d'affaires at the U.S. embassy in the West German capital of Bonn, to Pyotr A. Abasimov, Soviet Ambassador to East Germany.

The American protest called the shooting of 18-year-old Paul Schultz "tragic" and blamed it on the wall the Communist East Germans built on Aug. 13, 1961, to halt the flight of refugees to the west.

10 SHOTS FIRED

Some of the 10 shots fired at the young electrician's apprentice as he was scaling the wall fell into the American sector of Berlin and the protest said they endangered lives in that area.

Cosa Nostra Fraud Shown by 'Diagram'

CHICAGO (AP)—An insurance agent has given the Cook County state's attorney's office a step-by-step diagram of how cosa nostra gangsters are operating a multi-million-dollar insurance fraud, the Chicago Sun-Times says.

The Sun-Times quotes state attorney's investigators as saying Leslie C. Barbe, 32, the Marshall Caliano, was reported to have said he heard cosa nostra hoodlums talk of collecting more than $500,000 in the last five years on fake claims resulting from phony burglaries, auto accidents and incendiary fires.

Barbe has been kept under protective custody by the state's attorney's office for the last two months. He is scheduled to testify against Caliano, 52, in an insurance fraud case. Caliano is charged with conspiracy to commit theft by deception.

The Sun-Times says Caliano and six others were implicated in the fraud.

The newspaper named John (Jackie) Cerone, Sam (Teetz) Battaglia, Phillip (Milwaukee) Phil Alderisio, Albert (Obbie) Frabotta, Ross Prio and Jimmy (The Monk) Allegretti.

All have been connected with the cosa nostra, authorities said.

... CYPRUS

Continued from Page 1 of Nicosia. Almost deserted since the fighting began, streets began to fill with people. A few shops — mostly grocers — reopened after nearly a week.

PICTURE MORE GRIM

In the beleaguered Turkish sector of Nicosia, which has been cut off since last Sunday, the situation is more grim.

Telephone reports said the Turkish Cypriot command had sent loudspeaker vans out in the streets this morning to warn citizens to remain indoors. It was not clear why this order was issued.

As in the Greek sector, Turkish Cypriot civilian armed vigilantes are still manning control points along the border-line.

Vice-President Fazil Kutchuk, leader of the Turkish Cypriots, accused the Greek Cypriots of atrocities Thursday and claimed that at least 300 Turkish Cypriots were killed in the communal fighting.

The Turkish embassy said 60 Turkish Cypriots were killed. The fighting began last Saturday when a Greek Cypriot police patrol halted some Turkish Cypriots. Each side accused the other of firing first.

Kutchuk today appealed to the International Red Cross to investigate the alleged atrocities against the Turkish Cypriots.

The Greek Cypriots denied Turkish charges that they had massacred Turkish Cypriot women and children.

BODIES STACKED UP

But Kutchuk showed reporters a series of pictures he said backed up his charges. One was a photograph of the bodies of seven or eight children stacked up in a bathtub.

The government of Archbishop Makarios, Greek Cypriot president, appealed for public co-operation with the joint Greek-Turkish-British patrols "so that the task of the forces in assisting in restoration of law and order may be more effectively achieved."

Cyprus asked for a meeting of the UN Security Council, charging Turkey with aggression and use of force. Turkey denied the charges.

Britain ordered 1,000 infantry flown to Cyprus to reinforce the 10,000-man British garrison made up mostly of RAF personnel untrained for street fighting. A British armored squadron also is being moved from Libya to Cyprus.

President Johnson of the United States appealed to Cyprus to make any sacrifice to end "this terrible fraternal strife." He also promised "to support any and all actions" by Britain, Greece and Turkey to achieve peace.

Smoking Ban Urged

LONDON (Reuters) — The British Medical Journal suggested today that young people should be deterred from smoking by law. "Further thought should be given to devising legislation that would at least deter young people from adopting this exceedingly dangerous habit," The Journal said.

SHOWS PROFIT

Scandinavian Airlines System reported a net profit of $4,000,000 for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1963—the first surplus in four years.

MAJOR EVENTS WITNESSED DURING 1963

Kennedy Assassination Top Story

By The Canadian Press

Assassination of President Kennedy was unquestionably the top news story of 1963.

Without exception, wire-news editors participating in a Canadian Press poll put the Kennedy slaying at Dallas Friday, Nov. 22, at the head of their lists of the year's major news events.

One-quarter of them said they would give No. 2 place to the startling, aftermath of the assassination—the fatal shooting two days later of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused killer of the president by Dallas night club owner Jack Ruby.

But in the over-all voting, second spot went to the Christine Keeler sex-security scandal in Britain that resulted in the June 5 resignation of war minister John Profumo, the Aug. 3 suicide of society osteopath Stephen Ward while on trial on vice charges, and the December jailing for perjury.

RATED ELECTION FIRST

Top Canadian story was the April 8 federal election which gave the government to Lester B. Pearson and his Liberal supporters though without an overall majority.

The editors were asked to pick the top world and Canadian news events of the year. Their selections:

1. Kennedy assassination and aftermath.
2. U.K. scandal.
3. Death of Pope John XXIII, 81, on June 3, and election 18 days later of Giovanni Cardinal Montini, 65, Pope Paul VI, as head of the Roman Catholic Church.
4. Signing in Moscow July 25 of big three treaty banning all nuclear weapons tests except underground.
5. U.S. racial conflict, particularly in Birmingham, Ala.
6. Loss of the U.S. atomic submarine disaster.

CANADIAN

1. Federal election April 8.
2. Crash of TCA DC-8F jet aircraft near Montreal Nov. 29, killing 118.
3. Huge wheat sales to Soviet Union and other countries behind the Iron Curtain.
4. Trusteeship over seamen's unions proclaimed Sept. 23.
5. Pilot Ralph Flores of San Bruno, Calif., and passenger Helen Klaben of Brooklyn, N.Y., found alive March 25 near wreck of plane that crashed 50 days earlier in northern B.C. wilderness.
6. Separatism in Quebec including violence blamed on the FLQ.

LIST OTHER TOP STORIES

Other world stories rated high included withdrawal of first Soviet troops from Cuba last March; the Nov. 2 military coup in Viet Nam; earth orbits by U.S. astronaut Gordon Cooper and the Russian woman Valentina Tereshkova; Yugoslav earthquake July 26; Italian flood Oct. 9; the Great U.K. train robbery in August, and the retirement of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan succeeded by Lord Home, now Sir Alex Douglas-Home because he renounced his titles.

In Canada, stories rated after the top six included resignation of three ministers from the Diefenbaker cabinet before the April 8 election; death of three striking woods workers in a fight with independent bush cutters at Kapuskasing, Ont., last Feb. 11; Finance Minister Walter Gordon's withdrawal of major budget proposals June 19, and the St. Lawrence River ship collision July 20 that killed 33 persons.

LAKONIA DISASTER

British Labor Demands Fire Probe

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home is studying demands for a full British inquiry into the Lakonia ship disaster.

Latest figures issued by the ship's Greek owners put the number of known survivors at 901, the dead at 96 and the missing at 31.

The Greek Line said no official list of the dead and missing would be issued before next Wednesday morning to permit double checking.

The prime minister agreed Thursday night to consider the demand of Patrick Gordon Walker, Labor party spokesman on foreign affairs, for a British inquiry.

Most British newspapers supported the demand.

Greek authorities have promised an inquiry, but The Daily

Herald said: "Only an inquiry cannot be suspected of partiality will restore confidence." It suggested an international inquiry, with both Greece and Britain represented, would be best.

Gordon Walker said the British government should inquire into the tragedy because most of the Lakonia's 651 passengers were British and the cruise was organized by agents in Britain.

The ship's owners have refused to answer in detail allegations by some survivors that members of the Lakonia's crew behaved badly. The shipping line said its first duty was to repatriate survivors and inform relatives of casualties.

REVIEW of the United States foreign aid program will be undertaken by Under Secretary of State George W. Ball, named by President Johnson Thursday to head a nine-member governmental committee. Johnson said he wanted the group "to approach the problem of foreign aid with fresh minds not bound by precedent or by existing procedures or arrangements."

Mancroft Takes Over New Post

LONDON (AP)—Lord Mancroft, the Jew forced out of a big British insurance company because of Arab pressure, is to become chairman of an Israeli travel company.

He told reporters Thursday he had been planning to join the venture before the Norwich Union Insurance Company dropped him from its board in November to protect its interests from the Arabs' anti-Israel boycott.

The travel company is called Global Tours Israel. Mancroft already is chairman of another company called Global Tours, a subsidiary of Sir Isaac Wolfson's Great Universal Stores. It was because of Mancroft's association with Wolfson, a staunch supporter of Israel, that the Arabs threatened to boycott Norwich Union.

TERRORISTS TRY TO BURN CONSULATE

CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuters)—Police sought eight terrorists who tried to set fire to the British vice-consulate building in Valencia, about 100 miles west of here, Thursday night.

Police opened fire on the men as they were preparing to light inflammable jelly they had spread at the vice-consulate. The terrorists escaped by car.

SLIDING SCALE OF PRODUCTION QUOTAS

Failure to Be Penalized in Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban government Thursday night announced plans for sliding industrial wage scales that will penalize workers who failed to meet production quotas and reward those who produce more.

Industries Minister Ernesto (Che) Guevara told a radio and television audience the program is the Communist regime's solution to a problem of high salaries "inherited from imperialism as a result of the union's fight for better wages."

Guevara, chief architect of Cuba's conversion to a socialist economy, said eight industrial salary categories will be established with workers paid according to "technical ability." If "they increase that ability," they will be raised to a higher category and if they "surpass their production quotas" they will receive premiums, Guevara said.

But he also said salaries will be reduced for those who do not meet quotas. He warned the reductions will be greater than the premiums.

Guevara conceded that in most cases the new wage scales are lower. But he said the government will not order wage cuts since "it would be difficult and it would cause resentment." However, Guevara said premiums will be based on the new scales rather than the prevailing higher wages while the penalty reductions will be based on actual salaries.

No Attempt to Fight Blaze

Among the allegations are: No concerted attempt was made to fight the fire aboard the 20,314-ton liner.

The order to abandon ship was given before it was necessary.

Fear-stricken and drunken crew members grabbed places in lifeboats that should have gone to passengers.

Lifeboats were not properly launched and some lacked provisions and other necessary equipment.

The ship's British nurse, Anne Storey, 23, who flew home with the first group of survivors Christmas Day, said only about 10 Greek members of the crew were responsible for the charges of panic and drunkenness.

"They looted the cabins, then took the first available lifeboats and made their getaway," she said. "The rest of the crew were brave and chivalrous."

However, the Lakonia's master, Capt. Mathos Zarbis, said: "There was no panic on board, my ship—neither among the crew nor the passengers. The crew did not try to jump into the boats ahead of the passengers."

Peter Bulgarides, superintendent engineer of the Greek Line, said the Lakonia had "everything it should have had in the way of safety devices. . . . It would not have been allowed to sail from Southampton if British officials had objected to its safety standards."

The line said earlier that "the lifeboats definitely were properly equipped and had all been checked during the refit period before sailing."

Zarbis will face a preliminary investigation into the fire when he arrives in Athens Saturday.

HAIL OF BULLETS AT SEATTLE HOLIDAY PARTY

Dance Refusal Brings Death to 2

SEATTLE (AP)—The first discord was a small thing. A reveler at a neighborhood Christmas party asked one of the women to dance. She refused.

But from that incident grew violence bringing death to a father of five children and a mother of three, and serious wounds for two other persons.

The man who wanted to dance, James Thor Mol, 25, is in jail facing two charges of first degree murder and first degree assault.

In five homes there was tragedy instead of Christmas joy.

Robert Connell, 40, retired navy chief pharmacist's mate, and Mrs. Darlene Richardson, 31, died in a spray of bullets.

Mrs. Omaha Darrah, 30, and marine Staff Sgt. Raymond L. Glenn, 33, were shot in the chest.

The shooting took place about 2 a.m. Sunday in the recreation room of the Darrah residence. This was the second year the neighbors had gotten together for what was planned as an annual Christmas celebration. About 30 joined in.

Mol and his wife Roberta, 20, and their small son had moved in across the street from the Darrah's only recently.

As the party wore on, Mrs.

Mol went home because she was not feeling well. Mol remained.

Statements taken by sheriff's detectives from witnesses told of this chain of events:

Mol had been dancing with Al Jay's wife, Helen, and wanted her to dance again. She declined, and Mol began tugging her arm. Jay intervened.

Finally, several men ejected Mol and followed him outside. There was a fight.

About an hour later Mol returned with a .22-calibre rifle and a pistol. There was a series of rapid-fire shots from the rifle and Mol fled. He was arrested in a nearby grocery, where he had broken in, knocked over shelves and dumped bleaches, detergents, beer and other liquors on the goods, doing about $4,000 worth of damage.

Mol, a native of Seattle, was manager of a used car lot. All Mol has said publicly since his arrest is that "I find it hard to believe I could have killed two people."

A Job Still to Be Done

DESPITE A NUMBER OF FUMbles in various departments, the federal government brought its first session to a close with some definite progress to its credit.

Mr. Gordon's original budget resulted in embarrassing revisions and a Commons squabble over the propriety of his advisers. Miss LaMarsh was in trouble with her overall pension plan, and Mr. Chevrier underwent some heavy criticism on his handling of the Hal Banks and Wasylenchuk cases.

Of these, the budget problems were the most serious. Mr. Gordon has not yet solved either the federal deficit or the international payments dilemma with which the problem of foreign ownership is so closely tied. The session has, however, produced a full debate and vote on departmental estimates, for the first time in more than two years.

Among the "mission accomplished" items may be noted the government's establishment of a board of trustees to control the Seafarers' International Union and other maritime labor organizations.
This has brought at least temporary peace to the turbulent Great Lakes labor scene and speeded handling of the great wheat shipments to Russia. While the chief effect of this action still lies in the future, the legislation so far has not aroused the dire calamities predicted in some quarters.

The $10 a month pension increase for the aged and disabled was, of course, welcomed by the public in general. Fortunately it is matched by an increased tax to pay for it. The measure, however, was rushed through under political pressure when Mr. Pearson would have preferred to incorporate its provisions in more far-reaching legislation. The latter—providing for a contributory nation-wide pension plan which eventually would pay $100 a month in addition to existing old-age pension payments of $75—ran into heavy fire from critics of its actuarial soundness and the program was—very wisely we think—postponed for further study. The principle, however, remains unassailable.

Other government measures carry potential benefits which will be felt as time goes on. The Municipal Development and Loan Act, the new Economic Council, and preliminary moves to implement some of the MacPherson commission proposals for rehabilitation of the railways may be listed among these.

But perhaps more significant than the mechanics of legislation were certain wider concepts which emerged from the session just concluded. The general impression created by the Liberal administration was disappointing. The years of Mr. Diefenbaker's vacillation and delay had brought a demand for forthright action and demonstrable progress. This was achieved in some areas, but there were disquieting periods when the government was unable to make headway and cabinet members seemed to be working at cross purposes.

Mr. Pearson might well consider this picture as he prepares for the next session in February and note the nation's desire for an administration free of embarrassing political bobbles.

Despite this impairment, however, it was very evident that the opposition parties had no stomach for another election so soon after last spring's return of a minority government. Although there were serious threats from time to time to the government's continued existence, no party, in the crunch, was willing to risk public condemnation by forcing an election. No party, indeed, was in a financial position to launch a campaign. The Canadian people still have an attitude of "Let's see what you can do," but it will not last indefinitely.

Mr. Pearson may see his position as fairly safe for some months after the next session opens. But his safety will diminish with the passage of time from the previous election. His problem is to build, while he is still able, a demonstrable record of sound legislation to cope with Canada's major problems, and establish himself and his government in the public mind as a capable —the only capable—agency for progress. He has not done this yet, but he can do it.

With Two Tongues

MOST FAIR-MINDED ENGlish-speaking Canadians seem to agree—in principle—that the French language and culture should play a broader role in national life.

But when they are called upon to move from agreeing in principle to agreeing in practice, there is a different light cast on the problem.
The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's plan to convert one of its two Toronto stations to a French language outlet serving southwestern Ontario is a case in point.

This station, CJBC, was the Toronto outlet for the old Dominion network of the CBC and, since the corporation dropped that network, CJBC has been on its own with the other Toronto CBC station operating in the Trans-Canada network.
CJBC has been used as a French language station for two hours a night with the remainder of the programming being aimed at the "middlebrow" and "highbrow" audiences.

The CBC decision to convert entirely to French language is a follow-up to the Fowler Commission report which recommended to the government in 1957 "that no effort of ingenuity should be spared to find, within reasonable financial limits, a workable technical arrangement" to broadcast in French to the French minority group in southwestern Ontario.

In the area served by CJBC there are about 163,000 persons able to speak French and about 67,000 for whom French is their mother tongue. According to the CBC this is the largest French group in the country not served by a Frenchlanguage station.

Yet, despite the fact that the situation seems tailor-made for the CBC decision — low-cost facilities, ready-made audience, backing of the Fowler Commission report — there are howls of protest being heard in Toronto. The majority of the Members of Parliament in the area have made statements highly critical of the decision and there is fear that it will become the centre of a bitter public dispute.

This situation is a timely reminder that while English-speaking Canadians generally will agree that the French language and culture should be preserved, the agreement may be "in principle" only.

'No Thanks. I'm Driving.'

IT IS A RARE HOLIDAY SEAson that leaves any locality without its incident of grim tragedy. All too frequently the period which should be an occasion of unqualified serenity and joy is marred by severe, often fatal accident—and usually an accident that need not have happened.

This is the message safety authorities repeat each year as they make a special plea to car drivers.
They ask for restraint that saves conviviality from becoming disaster.

'Close of Play'

THE WORLD OF CRICKET HAS lost a living legend in the death at 81 of Sir John Hobbs, the famous Jack Hobbs, who was to his sport what "Babe" Ruth and Lou Gehrig were to baseball.

Hobbs was a genuine class leader
— those of W. G. Grace and Ranjisinhji, the spectacular "Ranji", in-something of a classic English trilogy antedating the more recent stars, including the Australian Don Bradman.

Jack Hobbs faced and battered the world's top bowlers of his time on any pitch, scoring century after century in county and international play, in tests for the Ashes and for standing in the league.

He was of the generation that lived through the relative discrimination shown in English cricket between "gentlemen" players and professionals. Hobbs was a professional and a gentleman, was recognized as such and honored with a knighthood—a man who embodied the sentiment and character of a game that for uncounted years was a synonym for gentlemanly sportsmanship.

'Eyes' That Turned Guess to Knowledge

By JOSEPH ALSOP

IN THE last three years, the true shape of the world we live in has been radically changed by a new fact, which very few people know about even today.

The fact is that we now know the true nature of the power balance between the United States and the Soviet Union. Despite its closed society, the Soviet Union is now open to inspection—in the most literal sense. We could only guess before; but since August, 1960, we have known.

This is a change incalculably profound and far-reaching. It is also an incalculable gain for the United States. And this needs to be pointed out now because the man to whom this change and gain are largely owed is now leaving the public service, uncelebrated, unrewarded, almost unthanked.

If any member of the general public recalls the name of Richard M. Bissell, it will probably be because of the Bay of Pigs. Before that fiasco, Bissell was due to succeed Allen Dulles as Director of the Central Intelligence Agency. But someone had to take the rap for this sorry failure, for which everybody from President Kennedy on down had a share of blame; and Bissell was chief among those who took the rap. Another job followed—a fairly big job, but one which is now ending for reasons which are not especially relevant. All that is relevant, at the moment, is to record just how the closed Soviet society ceased to be closed for all practical purposes.

This remarkable story began in the summer of 1954 when one of President Eisenhower's numerous special advisory committees, the Killian Committee on Surprise Attack, suggested building a reconnaissance plane of the type of the U-2.

Such a plane had already been proposed to the Air Force by the brilliant Kelly Johnson of Lockheed Aviation, but the idea had been turned down flat.

By the intricate, half-accidental processes familiar in government, the Killian Committee recommendation brought together a three-star team, composed of Kelly Johnson, the famous E. H. Land of the Polaroid Co., and Bissell from the CIA, who was the friend of both the others.

In record time, these three bulled the U-2 through from concept to reality. The strange new aircraft was thereupon assigned to the CIA. Bissell thus became commander of an independent U-2 air force, in addition to his other duties.

So much is fairly well-known to informed persons. What is not well known (and would not be discussed in this space if the main facts had not already been published elsewhere) is the second chapter of the story that opened with the U-2.

Small Chink

Because the intervals between U-2 flights were unavoidably long, and for other technical reasons as well, the U-2 did no more than open a small chink in the Iron Curtain. Contrary to what many imagine the U-2 did not really replace guesses about the Soviet Union with true knowledge.

Yet the new plane's success was very great, all the same. And this success in turn directed attention to the reconnaissance satellite project previously initiated by the Air Force Research and Development Command.

From this public project, until then rather languidly prosecuted, a chunk was quickly cut off, as it were. The chunk was strictly classified, but amply financed.

And an all-out secret effort to build a workable reconnaissance satellite began.

This time Lt.-Gen. Bernard Schriever of the Research and Development Command worked with Bissell. Brig.-Gen. Oswald Rittland was Bissell's day-to-day partner. "Din" Land again lent a hand. And others might be mentioned.

Yet in the official Air Force account of this matter, the main credit for the success of the reconnaissance satellite is nonetheless given to Bissell. August, 1960, when the first of the new "birds" with seeing, remembering eyes made its successful flight, is a date that will be remembered in history books.

It is a date with much bearing, to begin with, on the silly controversy about the missile gap. Until we knew the Soviets had not deployed the intercontinental ballistic missiles which they were entirely capable of producing, the only safe course was to assume that the Soviets were indeed producing and deploying these ultimate weapons. Their failure to do so was in fact a gigantic error.

But after August, 1960, we began to know that the ICBMs were not there; and this in turn changed the entire strategic aspect of the world by the time President Kennedy took office. No historian or analyst can compute what this true knowledge has since been worth, in the desperate days of the second Cuban crisis, for instance, or much earlier, when Khrushchev at Vienna threatened a big war over Berlin.

Such, then, is the debt owed to Dick Bissell. As he happens to be this reporter's oldest friend, the debt is here acknowledged with pride. But every thinking American will surely wish to say,
"Thank you and good luck," to this exceptional public servant who is now returning to private life.

The Berlin Wall Breach That Nearly Wasn't

By NEAL ASCHERSON

THE Christmas opening of the Berlin Wall is a famous victory for people over politics. For the first time since the building of the wall two-and-a-half years ago, the half-million West Berliners with relations on the other side could cross over to visit them.

On Wednesday, December 18, in school halls throughout West Berlin, East German postal staff began to accept applications for the passes, valid for one day from seven in the morning to midnight, in the period up to January 5. As an extra flourish of tolerance, New Year's Eve passes last till five the next morning.

In the West German Press, there are some growls of foreboding. The conservative FRANKFURTER ALLGEMEINE feared that new cracks had been opened in the front of non-recognition which ought to face East Germany.

The story of the negotiations is an institutional thriller. They nearly failed at the outset, in a sinister episode which had not been properly explained. The first letter proposing Christmas visits had come to Mayor Willy Brandt on December 5 from Herr Abusch, East Germany deputy Prime Minister. Brandt consulted the Federal Government in Bonn, and it was agreed that talks should go ahead in secret —agreed by Chancellor Erhard, but opposed by several "old guard" Cabinet members who feared Communist trickery.

Dangerous Leak

The Government spokesman, Herr von Hase, was not present at this meeting, and did not hear about the secrecy provision.
His office suggested privately to a few journalists that they should ask a question about Christmas passes at next day's Press conference. One did; von Hase answered him, and the cat was out of the bag.
Furious, the East Berlin authorities charged Bonn with interfering and sabotaging the negotiations by deliberate breach of secrecy.

But the Bonn release had already raised
West Berlin hopes to high excitement.
Mayor Willy Brandt, hardly concealing his anger at Bonn's blunder, tried in vain to damp his citizens' spirits and to warn them that the talks now had little chance of success.

December 7-8, it was rumored that the leak had indeed been engineered deliberately by a member of the "old guard" who knew that von Hase's office had not been briefed to keep the affair secret.

And yet, while the East German Press
Agency stormed away, the West Berlin Senate received a message from the other side of the wall asking for an answer to the original offer, as if nothing had happened. Negotiations were quietly taken up; both sides made concessions. Bonn agreed to let the West Berlin Senate handle the talks, and Brandt sent back a letter which avoided directly addressing Herr Abusch but began: "The acting mayor of Berlin states that . . ." and ended with his signature.

The talks were led by junior officials.
West Berlin was represented by a young legal expert from the Senate, East Berlin by an amiable old Communist veteran from the Ministry of Culture. The main obstacles to their job were two: the question of who would issue the passes and where, and the question of the form which their final agreement would take.

Pettifoggery Complexity

The Berlin pass-office question, in all its violent and pettifoggery complexity, had come to resemble the Schleswig-Holstein dispute, of which Lord Palmerston said that only three people had ever understood it: "The Prince Consort, who is dead; a German professor, who has gone mad; and I, who have forgotten all about it."

Somewhere underneath it lay an argument about the act of State performed by thumping a rubber stamp on a pass. West Berlin and the Western Allies refused to have this thump heard in their part of the city. They insisted that the thump immediately transformed the hut in which it rang out into a consulate general of the German Democratic Republic. There was more, but it doesn't matter very much.
What made a solution possible—even if only for three weeks—was the East German decision to stop being difficult.
They allowed an ingenious arrangement to emerge. The passes are applied for in West Berlin in school halls (which obviously cannot be permanently used for the purpose); the passes are thumped in East Berlin and sent back through the wall; and the East German officials who handle them in the West part of the city are only postal staff, not senior or political civil servants.

The last hurdle was the problem of form. An agreement bearing signatures of the West Berlin Senate and the East German government was signed. "At the instructions" of their respective authorities, who were thereby not committed to noticing each other's existence.

Another clause in the document remarks:
"Both sides declare that no agreement on a common terminology for localities, authorities or offices could be reached."

This admission of failure really represents —in the usual Berlin way—a dazzling success. Both sides have managed to suppress what they could not agree on.

In all this, the most striking feature is the way in which the East Germans have been prepared to make concessions. This in itself arouses suspicion, and it is true that if the negotiations had failed, the East Germans would have been able convincingly to argue to West Berliners that it was all the fault of Mayor Brandt and of Bonn.
However, they evidently did not wish them to fail. There are speculations that Moscow has at last put pressure on its East German satellite to manifest a little warmth at the coldest point of European politics.

A "technical contact" has been made across the Wall which does not involve recognition of East Germany. That is the most important international result. And the Berliners themselves have at last made their own wishes heard over the wrangles of West Germans, East Germans, Allies and Russians which generally drown them out.

Hidden Taxes

It is not surprising that Canada is one of the last countries to consider tax reform. This is admittedly a difficult and complex problem but the ideas given solemn credence by many people are indeed amazing.

In a recent editorial in the Times the writer compared hidden "sales taxes with corporation taxes" and solemnly concluded corporation taxes particularly in view of good reports of profits this year, were by far the most equitable form of taxation.

May I point out something everyone should know. Profits go up and down.
Ours is a profit and loss system. But up or down no corporation has a thin dime of its own. All its revenues are derived from sales of goods or services. It follows that corporation taxes are just an expense which must be born like rent or wages before a profit can be made. It follows again that the consumer, Joe Doakes, must pay all expenses plus the profit if a corporation is to continue to exist. When corporation taxes go up old Joe Doakes must pay. If ever there was a hidden tax for Joe Doakes, corporation taxes are it.

Doctors' Yuletide Greeting

The article on the front page of your Saturday, Dec. 7 issue, "Doctor Fees To Be Hiked 5.7%," and the details that the new schedule was to go into effect
Jan. 1, 1964, was quite a surprise to me, though I do not know how it affected others.

As a Yuletide or New Year greeting,
I thought it was unorthodox to fire on sitting ducks, and most of the invalids shape up as sitting ducks at an announcement like that. But it is the repercussion we get from the example set by our federal representatives and others, and the worst feature is to be expected in the influence it will have on the younger element.

Victoria is and should be a mecca for elderly people to enjoy the salu-brious and equable climate in this environment, particularly good for those ailing, for they do not have to travel far here to see someone even less fortunate than themselves. But, "as ye sow, so also shall ye reap."

Unfair to Teen-Agers

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I have forwarded to the CBC. This letter represents the views of a group of parents who had witnessed a recent show and who had asked me to write the CBC as follows:

I regret the erroneous impression that will have been created in the minds of your viewers of "Inquiry" (Monday, Dec. 16). If this show was intended to present evidence upon which the public might base its decision as to the advisability of granting the franchise to Canadians attaining the age of 18 years, it was a farce and a travesty.

I am a septuagenarian and if you had selected skid-row, the beer parlor or an institution for the senile to portray the political literacy and citizenship responsibility of any age group, I would be deeply incensed to say the least. Yet you evidently selected the denizens of the casbah, the hang-out, pool-room or the dime-and-dance to establish the norm intelligence, the political literacy and sense of responsibility of our teen-agers.

It was small wonder then that Vancouver youth fared so badly—in spite of the valiant attempts of the interrogator to inspire answers above the level of a sub-normal six-year-old. The incumbent government and everyone associated with education in this province must be deeply ashamed or resentful of the whole affair.

I for one refuse to believe that our 18-year-olds in British Columbia are as abysmally ignorant, indifferent and irresponsible as indicated in this show.

Had you wished to be objective and accurate, as is the purpose of "Inquiry"
I am sure, you would have selected your subjects from our schools, playing fields, church groups, homes or University or wherever representatives of the great majority of our 18-year-olds may be found and not from the habitat of a small minority.

Or if you wish to present a true picture to the electorate of this nation why not take "Inquiry" to Saskatchewan where the 18-year-olds have been voting for the past fifteen years? I will lay you three to one that you will get an intelligent and accurate answer to every single elementary political question you asked Monday night. Also the same odds if you find Saskatchewan's teen-age voters one less whit politically knowledgeable and responsible than any other age group in that province or here in British Columbia.

If by most unlikely chance a representative group of Vancouver's teen-agers was selected my chagrin over the results is reduced to abject mortification.

JOHN F. STURDY.

Wife to Husband and Vice-Versa

"YOU noticed this year that they emphasized glamor in gifts."

"Yep. Like automatic dish-washers."

"No. Not exactly. Anyhow together we make a pretty good washer-drier combination. Stack the plates in the cupboard, also. I'm waiting for them to turn out an automatic putter-awayer before I buy. No I wasn't thinking about that. I was thinking more like diamonds."

RICHARD M. NIXON

"You got a diamond?"

"Yes. And a pretty durable one too. Not gaudy, mind you, but adequate. It seems to have done the trick for a fair length of time. And as you said to me when you put it on my finger, a man should never give his bride a rock big enough to hook for enough to finance the divorce. It isn't big, but I can see it with my specs on. I didn't want another diamond, I was just remarking that the emphasis this year seemed to be on glamor. Maybe like good perfume."

"Don't care much for perfume. I'd rather smell a good, clean, healthy soap smell. Anyhow, I've been smoking so heavily lately I don't smell much of anything."

"You'd better watch that. You've heard them talk about people who like people, haven't you?"

"Sure. As a matter of fact I thought about that glamor stuff too, but not that way. I thought it would be nice to buy a couple of tickets to far away places, exotic lands and stuff like that. Figured I couldn't get off from the office long enough, though. Still, it would have been pretty elegant to take your arm and lead you up the Spanish Steps again, wouldn't it? Or maybe sit you at a table across from L'Opera?"

"Yep. You keep thinking about that. Those are nice thoughts, the kind I like. And maybe you might, come pick-a-pansy day, do something more than think about it. Don't wait too long, George. I'd like to take in these places again before I'm too old to hobble. And there are other cities and countries I'd like to see."

"I thought you'd like that. Want me to get out the projector and slides again?"

"No. Not today. But getting back to this glamor gift routine. Did you ever think of something sort of soft and sheer and lovely?"

"At this time of the year flannelette's warmer."

"True. But how would you feel if some night the house caught fire and I had to rush out in something that looked like me grandfather's flannelette nightgown? You'd be mortified."

"Look. Let's not have a night fire. And if we do and you tried flannelette, it'd probably save you from pneumonia."

"Let it lie. Let it lie. But don't ever think of giving flannelette to a lady on Christmas. You don't tune into this glamor stuff very well, do you — except for travel?"

"Sure I do. And if you'd hipped around a little I'd have been given to death to get you any little glamorous gift your glamorous little heart desired. But you didn't hint. You told me straight out what you wanted. Now you've got 'em, how do you like those fuzzy-lined gumbos? Are they comfy?"

"They're swell. Be good up at Shawing in the wet weather and I can use them for gardening, too. How did you like those high topped digging boots I gave you?"

"They're swell, too. A little heavy for dancing, but I don't go to many balls now. Anyhow you said you couldn't stand my old boots any longer, said your feet hurt just looking at me wearing them. Maybe we ought to tell these advertising people that there are other things than glamor. Maybe not though. It's a bit like Santa Claus. Have to keep up the illusion for other people."

'60 Candidate Runs Second To Goldwater

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's 1964 presidential stock has skyrocketed since President Kennedy's death while Senator Barry Goldwater's has fallen sharply, a second poll of Republican county chairmen indicates today.

But Goldwater again led all potential nominees.

The poll, taken by Associated Press correspondents in all 50 states, brought replies from 1,361 Republican leaders, a majority of whom also participated in a poll in October.

Although still in front, Goldwater's vote was only about half the spectacular total he rolled up in the October poll. Then, 55.1 per cent of those participating named the Arizona senator as the party's "strongest candidate" against Kennedy. His figure in the second poll was 44.2 per cent.

Nixon, vice-president under President Eisenhower, showed the greatest gains and ran second to Goldwater.

LODGE MOVES UP

Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to South Viet Nam, barely mentioned in the October poll—was third, finishing ahead of New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller, only announced candidate for the nomination.

Those queried included some members of the national committee and city and town leaders. Two questions were presented:

1. "On the basis of present conditions, in light of the death of President Kennedy, whom do you consider the strongest candidate for the Republican nomination?"
  2. "Whom do you think the party will nominate?"
- Goldwater's strength, as before, came mainly from the South, Middle West and West.

Heavy Fire Damage To Winnipeg Building

WINNIPEG (CP)—The National Trust Company opened for business today despite Thursday's fire which heavily damaged their main office at Portage Avenue and Garry Street.

About 45 firemen worked in zero weather and a light snow to control the hour-long blaze which damaged the basement, first and mezzanine floors of the five-storey, 35-year-old building.

No estimate of damage has been made and one fireman suffered a slight injury when cut by glass.

PHILIPPINES HELP

U.S., Cambodia Plan Negotiation

MANILA (AP)—The United States and neutralist Cambodia have agreed to try to settle their dispute with the help of the Philippines.

"Initial contacts have been made and will continue," Foreign Secretary Salvador P. Lopez of the Philippines said today. "So far the situation seems encouraging."

U.S.-Cambodian relations deteriorated rapidly after the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, announced Nov. 19 he would accept no more American aid and ordered U.S. military and economic personnel to leave his Southeast Asian nation.

In Washington, U.S. sources said Filipino President Diosdado Macapagal offered the use of his good offices last Friday. But indications are the United States is approaching the South Viet Nam and Thailand, which border Cambodia and have historic disputes with it.

The foreign ministers of Cambodia and South Viet Nam are meeting in Saigon in an attempt to restore diplomatic relations, severed last August after the late President Ngo Dinh Diem's troops raided Buddhist pagodas in Viet Nam. Sihanouk is a Buddhist.

Sihanouk Thursday demanded again that the U.S. government apologize for a request for an explanation of a Cambodian broadcast that U.S. officials interpreted as expressing pleasure at the assassination of President Kennedy. He also demanded that the United States withdraw a request for an official investigation of the broadcast.

MEET CONDITIONS?

Doubt was expressed in Washington that the United States would meet the conditions, even to patch up relations with the strategically placed nation.

Much of the deteriorating U.S.-Cambodian relationship results from Sihanouk's belief that the United States, along with its Vietnamese allies, is backing the "free Khmer" movement of

500-Mile Mercy Flight Saves Baby

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Christmas Day baby flown 500 miles here by mercy plane is in satisfactory condition today after a successful operation to correct a throat defect.

A spokesman at Vancouver General Hospital said the infant, identified on entrance as "Baby Tremblay," is fine today.

A doctor at Terrace, B.C., in Northern B.C., discovered the throat problem after examining the infant shortly after birth early Christmas morning.

An RCAF Albatross aircraft piloted by Flt-Lt. Pat Moran of Nelson, B.C., and bearing four other crew members flew from Vancouver to Terrace, picked up the infant and returned.

MORE FENCE-MENDING BY VIET NAM'S MINH

TAY NINH, Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam's anti-Communist front was widened in a gaudy ceremony today when a powerful religious sect officially aligned itself alongside the military government.

With paper dragons dancing around him and cymbals clashing, South Viet Nam's chief of state, Maj.-Gen. Duong Van Minh, received the backing of the Cao Dai hierarchy, which claims the adherence of more than 1,000,000 Vietnamese.

It was another successful fence-mending trip for Minh, who heads the military group that overthrew President Diem in November. Early this month he won the support of the 500,000-strong Hoa Hao religious sect in the Mekong delta.

Diem tried to suppress both sects because he feared their power. This resulted in the sects becoming virtually neutral in the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS — Snowflurries persisted until around noon today in the southeastern part of B.C. as a weak weather disturbance traversed that area. A more active system developing 700 miles southwest of Vancouver Island will bring rain to the coast by this evening and snow to the interior late tonight or early Saturday morning. Cold Arctic air with temperatures down to 20 below this morning remains almost stationary over the northeastern corner of the province.

He Didn't Recall Getting Into Car

NANAIMO—"I don't remember getting into the car," J. G. Day of Nanaimo today told Magistrate Eric Winch after a guilty plea to impaired driving Dec. 24.

Police said they followed his weaving car on Macleay Street for several blocks before finally stopping Day.

He was fined $175, $8 costs and his licence was suspended for three months.

AFTER DISASTER

Govt. Pays Extra $110,206

A construction firm has received an extra $110,206 from the provincial government because of the collapse of the Second Narrows Bridge in 1958.

A Cabinet order Tuesday approved the payment to John Laing and Son (Canada) Ltd., a contractor for concrete deck on the bridge.

The amount was decided by a board of arbitration headed by former Supreme Court judge J. M. Coady.

The company had sought $150,000 to pay for extra help hired to make up for delays

NEW CANADIANS FAVORITE VICTIMS

Used Car Racket Charged in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party in Ontario, said today the provincial government "chooses to turn a blind eye to the used-car racket."

He said in a statement Attorney-General Cass and his top officials need to be persuaded to investigate alleged dishonest practices in the used-car industry.

The statement outlined 16 cases in which used-car companies allegedly collected $1,500 in deposits and refused to return any of the money when lack of financing prevented the sales from going through.

He said these cases came from the files of the better business bureau.

"In some cases the down payment is a downright steal because the efforts to establish credit ratings are phony from the outset."

Mr. MacDonald said the down payment charges—and others to be documented in future statements—are his answer to Mr. Cass' refusal to act on a similar plea early this month.

REQUEST REFUSED

"Mr. Cass has refused the unanimous request of the select committee on consumer credit to investigate the shady operations of a fringe group of used car dealers," he said.

"The request was made on the basis of testimony presented by the Federation of Automobile Independent Retailers who are themselves trying to clean up the situation."

"Mr. Cass' excuse was that he couldn't act because he hadn't been given specific names and dates."

Mr. MacDonald said he did not include the names of customers and companies in the cases he listed in order to avoid unnecessary embarrassment.

"The practice of companies keeping down payments heads the list of shady operations through which the public is bilked," he said.

"Any inexperienced buyer is readily hooked but new Canadians, because of language difficulties, are favorite victims."

In a brief presented to the select committee on credit Dec. 5, Cecil Davidson, president of the Federation of Automobile Independent Retailers, said other methods used by dealers to bilk customers are issuing vague bills of sale, raising stated down payments, and using misleading advertisements.

Mr. MacDonald said he intends to deal with these patterns—one at a time, with specific examples to satisfy Mr. Cass.

SHOP PLAZA FIRE DAMAGE $750,000

OTTAWA (CP)—A spectacular fire Thursday destroyed three stores of the McArthur Road Shopping Centre in suburban Eastview, causing damage estimated at some $750,000.

The flames swept through a large grocery store, a departmental store and a shoe store and caused extensive damage to a clothing store. No one was injured.

Air Gun Attack On Emigrants

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)

Three youths went on a shooting rampage with air guns through 10 Sydney suburbs Thursday night, firing pellets at persons they believed were recent migrants to Australia, police said in court here today.

Colin Edward Zeitinger, 18, an apprentice type-setter, faced 10 charges of malicious wounding.

Police Sergeant R. A. Fisher said the youth and two unnamed juveniles set out in a car with two high-powered air guns.

At least 11 persons, including a man of 70 and a boy of 16, were hurt during a five-hour shooting rampage.

The police sergeant said Zeitinger was allegedly riding in the rear seat with one air gun. A second youth was on the other side, and a third was driving.

"All of the shots were fired from their moving motor vehicle," he said.

Zeitinger was ordered to face another hearing Jan. 3. Two other alleged offenders appeared in juvenile court.

ISLAND DIGEST

8 Victoria Daily Times
FRIDAY, DEC. 27, 1963

Mainland B.C. Saves Island Tourist Traffic

Vancouver Island's tourists came more from mainland B.C. this year than from mainland U.S.

A big slump in travellers direct from the U.S. is reported in the provincial trade department's annual business survey for 1963.

But the island's tourist business, it shows, was saved by visitors from the B.C. mainland.

Some decline was expected this year in the tourist trade because of the bumper crop of tourists who came to B.C. when Seattle was hosting its world's fair in 1962.

The province-wide decline was not as great as expected—except on Vancouver Island.

The number of "foreign"—that is U.S.—vehicles arriving at Sidney and Victoria this summer was lower than in 1961, the last "normal" year of tourist traffic.

Sidney this summer had only 7,973 U.S. vehicles, compared with 19,390 in 1962, and 9,141 in 1961.

Victoria had 12,629 U.S. vehicles this year, 20,580 in 1962, and 12,644 in 1961.

DOWN 48 PER CENT

The number of visitors using bus, plane and ferry was down 48 per cent from 1962, which was expected.

It was down 8.4 per cent from 1961, which was not.

The number of "walk on" U.S. ferry passengers coming to the island was 200,000 below 1962.

But the report shows that the mainland visitors were the island's saviors.

Many of the people who came here via ferry and plane from the B.C. mainland could have been Americans.

"A large increase in the number of visitors from the B.C. mainland covered the slight reduction from 1961 in the number of vehicles and passengers arriving directly from the U.S." The report said. It did not, though, give the figures.

Cobble Hill Death Ruled Accidental

DUNCAN — A coroner's jury Tuesday returned a verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to anyone, following an accident on the Cobble Hill Road on Monday.

Eighty-one-year-old William Bell, of Cobble Hill, died in the mishap.

The accident occurred at 3:30 Monday afternoon when Mr. Bell was struck by a half-ton truck driven by Gordon Dupont, 22, of Cobble Hill. The victim had been returning from his mailbox after collecting the mail.

Funeral services were held today from Hirst Funeral Chapel, with Rev. G. L. Gillard officiating. Interment took place in the family plot at Mill Bay United Church cemetery.

40 YEARS

Born in Northern Ireland, Mr. Bell had been a resident of Cobble Hill and District for 40 years. He was in the cattle farming business.

Predeceased by his wife, Mary, several years ago, Mr. Bell is survived by a son, Alex, of Cobble Hill, with whom he resided; a daughter, Mrs. Harold Hammond, Vancouver; five brothers, Walter and Alex, of Vancouver, Wesley, of Tacoma, Sam, of Calgary, and Isaac, of Ireland, and two sisters, also in Ireland.

Shivering Good Time Had by All

NANAIMO — Some 2,500 Nanaimoites went to Departure Bay at 11 a.m. Thursday to watch 347 district "polar bears" brave the 45 degree water of the bay.

Air temperature was 42 degrees, making it warmer in the water than out.

Swimmers were finally called from the water as "the spectators are getting cold".

The occasion was a Boxing Day swim organized by realtor Frank Ney, who offered $5 for three minutes immersion and $1 extra for those ducking their heads.

Before the end of the swim Mr. Ney was handing out not glistering silver dollars, but IOUs as shivering swimmers waited to hand in their names. Winners were 17-year-old Dick Trice of Nanaimo, and Don Green, 24, of Aldergrove, who stayed in for 48 minutes. Girl leader was 15-year-old Marion Mackinnon of Chase River who spent 44 minutes in the bay.

Oldest entrant was Fred Sillinger, 72, of Nanaimo, who polar bear for 22 minutes.

Ice blocks were thrown into the water among the swimmers. A total of 500 bananas also were distributed.

"Those with IOUs can collect tomorrow," he said. He estimated the polar bear idea will cost him almost $2,000.

Normal Flow Soon Through Water Line

PORT ALBERNI — Water is again flowing through Port Alberni's main pipeline following a non-stop repair job.

The line, broken in a mud slide Monday, was carrying partial capacity by Christmas Eve, relieving the city of drought fears.

Normal flow through the 27-inch line from China Creek was expected to begin again "in a day or so," officials said.

The line, previously in the roadbed of Franklin River Road, has been elevated to a trestle and now will be supported by heavy piles.

Meanwhile there was a delayed report of other damage caused by last weekend's heavy rainfalls — washout of the Harris Cove Bridge and sections of Bear Creek Road, near Port Renfrew.

Fields were also flooded when the San Juan River jumped its banks.

The flood washed out about 120 feet of the 1,200-foot-long bridge, carrying one section to sea.

SAFE CRACKERS TAKE $300

COURTENAY — Thieves cracked a safe and stole $300 from the premises of Ogilvie Flour Mill Co., on Boxing Day, police said today.

On Christmas night, thieves also broke into the federal building and ransacked the post office and National Employment Service office. No money was taken.

Broken Windows Cost $2,000

COURTENAY — Vandals taking pot shots at school windows with sling shots, rocks and other missiles are running up a $2,000 bill annually to district taxpayers.

School board secretary C. N. Peterson told the board that in not more than one case out of ten has it been possible to pin down the blame.

Driver Absolved

NANAIMO — A coroner's jury has absolved James B. Curran, Nanaimo Free Press editor, in the death of Ernest K. McKenzie, 66.

The pedestrian died 12 days after being struck by a car driven by Mr. Curran.

A WORD TO THE WISE FROM JACK BURGESS

It may be news for the young executive type, but most mature men prefer neat, conservative clothing... in classic styling that will not "date" over night. They know the importance of "selling yourself" and they know, too, that this is achieved by those who choose from the made-to-measure suits, slacks or jackets from JACK BURGESS, on Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire Road.

At Jack Burgess' you find the sincere, personalized service that means so much in the choice of suitings, and there are over 1600 samples to choose from... These include the famous Fox Hound worsteds, satin-faced Venetians, rugged Twists and Melange flannels. These normally are priced from $69.95 to $135.00, and now, during the Jack Burgess January Sale, they are all reduced by 20%. There are goodies for the ladies, too, at Jack Burgess' store, on Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire Road.

DESCRIPTIONS ISSUED

Store Robbers Still at Large

The pair escaped with $3,000 midnight after abducting a Safeway store manager at gun point and forcing him to open the safe of his store.

They are still at large.

Police said two men, who did not wear masks but wore silent-walking shoes, but manager George Donaldson in a produce cooler after binding him with tape.

The thugs then tore out the telephone wire and escaped with the money.

Police described the men as being between 20 and 25 and wearing navy blue three-quarter length coats.

CUT ON TEMPLE

One man is six feet tall, has dark hair and a noticeable half-inch cut on the right temple.

The other is about five feet, nine inches, and has dark, curly hair.

Mr. Donaldson said the two men knocked at his motel room door and at gunpoint took him back to the store where they forced him to open the safe in his office.

MSA Signs New Pact With Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Medical Services Association announced Tuesday there will be no increase in premiums despite an increase in fees by doctors.

An average 5.7 per cent increase in medical fees will go into effect Jan. 1.

In a statement MSA, the doctors' group medical insurance plan, said agreement has been reached with the B.C. Medical Association covering doctors' fees for three years beginning Jan. 1.

"There will be no increase in MSA members' premiums," said the statement.

"A four-point agreement provides that the new fee schedule as proposed by the doctors will be bound for three years instead of two as provided in the existing agreement."

The agreement establishes a joint committee representing the MSA board of directors and of the medical association to deal with over-serving and over-utilization.

Oak Bay: Higher, Brighter, Greener

By MARGE GILROY
Things are brighter, greener and higher in Oak Bay than at the beginning of 1963.

On the site of the Old Charming Inn now rises the nine-storey Rudyard Kipling apartment.

Across the bay the timbers of the old boathouse are beginning to crumble to make way for a new structure. An under-sea garden, loaded with fish, has been added. Nearby a restaurant, built a bit like a merry-go-round, will open soon.

Along Beach Drive, between the Uplands gates and Oak Bay Golf Club, you can't tell night from day with the new mercury street lights in operation.

As for Cadboro Bay Road, part of it looks more like the horse and buggy trail it was 50 years ago. But, fear not.

Three Persons Die In Head-On Crash

MANVILLE, Alta. (CP) — Three Saskatchewan residents were fatally injured Monday when two cars crashed head-on 2½ miles east of here on Highway 16. Richard V. Beam, 40, of Saskatoon, and Mrs. Mary Chatfield, 68, of North Battleford, were found dead in the wreckage. Naome Beamish, 12, year-old daughter of Mrs. Beamish, was dead on arrival in hospital at Edmonton, 100 miles west of here.

Foul Bay Road is still Foul Bay for a that. A change in face didn't result in a change of name.

SMOOTHER

Concrete along Beach Drive near Broom Road made the daily constitutional smoother going in that area.

New storm sewers and man-holes were added to take care of the underworld.

Boat ramps were widened at Cattle Point.

Underground sprinklers have been installed along part of Beach Drive. Newport and Bowker to keep boulevards even greener.

A recreation centre didn't get off the ground but it did get on paper—next year will tell the tale.

Two new garbage trucks and a leaf machine kept the rubbish and the rubble off Oak Bay streets.

NEW POOL

Kiddies wallowed for the first time in a new pool in Carnarvon Park.

The tweed curtain was drawn again this summer but the curtain on council business was lifted—no more long meetings of committee of the whole it's promised.

And if disaster strikes Oak Bay civil defence teams are ready to go—they are now trained for all types of rescue operation.

Ponies Run at 'Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—The thoroughbreds were off and running at Santa Anita Thursday despite an unresolved labor dispute that had threatened to delay opening of the track's winter season.

Until late Christmas Eve, a strike threatened to close the track but management and the building service union agreed to continue negotiations while racing goes on.

There were no negotiations Thursday, but a track spokesman indicated talks may resume today.

The union, representing parimutuel clerks, janitors, ushers and guards, says it is concerned about increased workload and automation.

Management believes the work force is adequate and demands the right to set the number of its employees.

Arne Has The Book On Fans

By JEFFREY GARLICK
MONTREAL (CP)—Those fans looked like kindergarten children out there," said Arne Stromberg, coach of the Swedish national hockey team, following their 5-4 loss to Montreal Junior Canadiens.

The crowd—11,334, strong—frequently demonstrated their disdain or approval of the proceedings by throwing rubbers, programs and hats on the ice.

"Those delays gave Montreal an advantage," said Stromberg. "We're in better shape and the delays gave them a chance to catch their breath."

Tumba Johansson, the Swedes' star center, said he thought his club had an excellent chance to grab the Olympic title this year.

(Thursday's results on Page 26).

RUSSIANS TOUGHEST

"The Russians will give us the hardest battle," he said. "I was in Moscow a month ago on business. They have a huge arena with a swimming pool and all they do is practice."

"Ten of their players have full-time jobs in the army but do nothing but practice hockey," said Johansson.

The big Swede said he has no intentions of returning to North America to play hockey in the National Hockey League. He had a tryout with Boston Bruins and was sent down to the minors with Quebec Aces.

"I liked playing over here. I like your style of hockey better than ours because body contact belongs in the game, but I'm not interested in leaving Sweden," he said.

Coach Stromberg said the Junior Canadiens compared favorably with the Trail Smoke Eaters who represented Canada in the world championships last year in Oslo.

RULES APPLY TO BOTH
"They skate well but they could use a little more experience," he said.

Stromberg objected strongly to the refereeing job of Frank Daigneault and Wally Harris. "They missed a lot of spearing and hooking out there. The rules were made to apply equally to both teams," he said.

Canada Wins In a Breeze

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Olympic team registered a lachrymose 5-0 shutout over Lakehead Senior All-Stars before 1,900 fans here Thursday.

It was the first game for the Olympic since their 3-1 defeat at the hands of the Czechoslovakian national team Sunday in Vancouver.

Olympics' superior conditioning gave them an edge. Over the final 40 minutes they outshot All-Stars 25-11.

Yanks Larruped

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—The U.S. Olympic hockey team was blanked 4-0 Thursday night by the amateur Rochester Mustangs, with the opening goal scored by Oscar Mahle, who was cut from the Olympic squad a few days ago.

HEART ATTACK ... CLAIMS WRESTLER

Gorgeous George Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Gorgeous George, the swaggering, perfumed wrestler with the golden hair, died in hospital Thursday.

George, 48, was taken to hospital Christmas Day after suffering a heart attack at his Hollywood apartment.

He had a number of business interests in recent years. One was a San Fernando bar which he sold not long ago.

Born George Wagner, he had his name legally changed to Gorgeous George in 1950, at the height of his wrestling career.

To further his image as an elegant villain, George adopted elaborate coiffures, orchid-colored robes and gold hairpins. At the peak of his career, he owned more than 100 robes. One, trimmed in ermine, cost $1,800.

He had a valet who spread a red carpet and sprayed the ring with perfume before George made his entrance.

In 1951, he said he had earned $160,000 in 277 matches and $128,000 from the sale of turkeys raised at his 195-acre ranch near Beaumont, Calif.

He had his last big match in Toronto in 1959, losing to Canada's Whipper Watson. In 1962, he announced he would no longer wrestle actively. He had long since lost his turkey ranch and other holdings.

Victory gave the U.S. 2-1 lead in best-of-five series, left it up to either Ralston or McKinley to win coveted mug by taking a singles victory Saturday.

Lightless Wrigley Park Gives Pete a Headache

NEW YORK (CP)—The horrid spectre of Canada's 1962 Fog Bowl is casting a baleful spell over plans for Sunday's National Football League final.

For those who may have forgotten, the fog descended on Toronto's Exhibition Stadium during last year's Grey Cup final and forced suspension of play with 9:29 left to play in the last quarter. They had to come back and finish the game the following day before Winnipeg Blue Bombers won their 28-7 decision over Hamilton Tiger-Cats and nobody was particularly happy.

Fog isn't the problem at Chicago, where the Bears tackle New York Giants in the NFL final. But blizzards are known to roll in over the Windy City from Lake Michigan at this time of year and Wrigley Field isn't equipped with floodlights.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle took steps to conserve the maximum of daylight by ordering a kickoff time of noon CST.

(10 a.m. PST), just in case teams run into overtime.

PROBLEM FOR TV

That would offer plenty of time if the Giants and Bears transacted their business as rapidly as the only previous overtime combatants in an NFL final in 1958, the year the Giants succeeded to Baltimore Colts after only eight minutes and 17 seconds of sudden-death play.

But in last year's American League final, it took the former Dallas Texans, now playing out of Kansas City, 77 minutes and 54 seconds to dispose of Houston Oilers. If they hadn't turned on the lights that time, nobody would know the score yet.

The Toronto solution wouldn't please the TV network that paid $26,000 for the rights to the NFL final. Clearing the necessary time for a Monday afternoon finish would be an expensive proposition.

Americans One Victory Away From Davis Cup

Ralston-McKinley Win All-Important Doubles

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—America's hard-hitting pair of collegians, Dennis Ralston and Chuck McKinley, took a firm grip on the coveted Davis Cup today by defeating Australia's hitherto invincible Roy Emerson and Neale Fraser in the crucial doubles match for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five challenge round series.

The scores were 6-3, 4-6, 11-9, 11-9.

Now the Americans, making their first appearance in the challenge round since they lost the cup to the Australians 3-2 at Forest Hills, N.Y., in 1959, need to win only one of the final two singles Saturday to end Australia's four-year domination of the world series of tennis.

In the last two singles it will be McKinley, the Wimbledon champion who bowed to Emerson Thursday, against John Newcombe, 19, the Aussie blaster who lost a five-set cliff-hanger to Ralston, 21, and Ralston against Emerson, unbeaten in Davis Cup singles.

STARRY 'SHOE' TIES ARCARO WITH 4,779

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Willie Shoemaker tied Eddie Arcaro Thursday as the second highest winning jockey in United States thoroughbred racing.

Shut out for eight races, Shoemaker won the ninth on Touse to bring his total up to the now-retired Arcaro's career total of 4,779 winners.

Touse returned $8. Both Arcaro and Shoemaker trail veteran Johnny Longden, who boosted his life time total at the meeting Thursday to 5,777 with three victories.

In world racing, England's retired Sir Gordon Richards is second with 4,870 winners.

City Bantams Lose Opener

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kamloops and New Westminster gave shutout spankings to opposing teams Thursday in the opening of the Burnaby Winter Club's three-day bantam hockey tournament.

Kamloops defeated Delta 15-0 and New Westminster whipped Victoria 7-0.

In other A division games, Burnaby beat Nanaimo 7-3 and Vernon edged Kerrisdale 4-3.

Shirley Wins Again

SHIRLEY NAYSMITH ... fourth time

GORD PELLOW ... playoff win

SHIRLEY WINS AGAIN

The secret's out.

There's one sure-fire way to beat Bill Wakeham.

Force him into a playoff.

That's how Gordie Pellow did it Thursday to capture top honors in the annual Christmas Tree golf tournament at Uplands.

Both finished the regulation 18 holes with three-over-par 73s. Pellow, a picture of consistency all day, won it on the second extra hole.

The ladies' low gross trophy went to George Vale's Shirley Naysmith for a fourth time.

Mrs. Naysmith was an easy winner, carding an 87 in the rain and slush to beat Uplands' Mrs. K. Tribe by five strokes.

NET AWARDS

The major low net awards went to Bill Hatcher of Colwood and Mrs. J. Gillan of Uplands.

Hatcher, a 17 handicap, carded a fine 81 for a net 64 to beat out clubmate Kerry Greenwood, 74-7, and Uplands' Mrs. K. Tribe by five strokes.

CHIP HIT CUP

Wakeham also missed a chance to win it all on the 18th. He three-putted the last regulation green from about 90 feet.

On the basis of consistency, however, Pellow was not to be denied. The capable Uplands veteran hit 19 of 20 greens.

The only green he failed to hit in regulation figures was the 19th. At that, he almost beat Wakeham right there, Pellow's chip shot off the fringe (for a birdie three) hit the cup but bounced out.

It marked the first time Pellow had won what has come to be regarded as Canada's major Christmas-time tournament.

MARLENE STEWART STREIT
... 'for heaven's sake'

HOFFMAN RUNNERUP IN CLOSE RACE

Marlene Again Tops Athlete-of-Year Poll

TORONTO (CP)—Marlene Stewart Streit won three major golf tournaments in a 1963 comeback and Thursday was selected as Canada's outstanding Woman Athlete of the Year.

"Well, for heaven's sake," commented the 29-year-old mother of two daughters when told of the award in the 29th annual Canadian Press year-end poll. "I didn't expect this, but I'm thrilled to get it."

The five-foot-one-inch Mrs. Streit had curtailed her golf competition after winning the Canadian Open title in 1959 to devote her time to raising a family and returned to big-time tournament play this year. She soon got back into the swing of things.

She won the Canadian women's open and close championships and followed with victory late in the year in the Australian Open.

The country's sports editors and sportscasters noted all of this and gave her the CP poll award in a tight race with 16-year-old Abigail Hoffman of Toronto, gold medalist in the 800 metres at the Pan-American Games in Brazil. It was the fifth time Mrs. Streit had headed the voting since she first burst on the golfing scene 12 years ago and won a bundle of trophies.

NONE APPROACH MARK

She won the CP poll that year and again in 1953-56-57. No other athlete has approached Mrs. Streit's string of triumphs and only one other has won it three times—Mrs. Tom King of Chicago, the former Barbara Ann Scott who headed the list in 1946-47-48 when she whipped everyone in sight in the world and Olympics in figure skating.

Mrs. Streit, a native of Cecil, Alta., who learned her golf in Ponthill, Ont., and now is a resident of Toronto, made it to the top this year in the tightest race in the history of the poll.

Based on a scale of three points for a first choice, two for a second and one for a third, she received 178 points against 174 for Miss Hoffman from the 154 participating voters who mentioned a total of 10 athletes.

Marlene received 33 first-place votes against 30 for the young Toronto schoolgirl who took up track two years ago and who dominated North American runners over the half mile. She suffered a setback in the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, when, bothered by a sore leg, she finished a well-beaten last.

SUCCEEDS SWIMMER

Mrs. Streit succeeded swimmer Mary Stewart of Vancouver, poll winner in 1961 and 1962. Mary had set world marks in the 110-yard and 100-metre butterfly, won a gold medal in her specialty at Perth, but failed to win at the Pan-Am Games and was mentioned by only three voters, getting one first-place ballot and a couple of third-place choices for a total of five points.

Third place went to Wendy Griner of Toronto, 1963 Canadian and North American figure-skating titleholder, with 149 points. Nancy McCredie, 18-year-old Brampton, Ont. schoolgirl who won gold medals in the shot-put and discus events at the Pan-Am games, was fourth.

Claudia McPherson of St. James, Man., who swam the English Channel from France to England last summer—just four months after her 17th birthday—edged Gail Ross of Edmonton for fifth place.

LIFESAVING COURSE

VANCOUVER—Royal Life Saving Society, B.C. branch, will conduct a lifeguard instructors' course at the University of British Columbia, Memorial Gymnasium on Jan. 3, 4 and 5.

"Why drive 300 miles to bang up yourself when we have snow and trees right here you can wreck yourself on?"

Game Tonight And That's It For Soccer

Victoria's senior soccer sides are accepting the holiday break.

Only one game will be played this weekend, and that comes up this evening at Royal Athletic Park when Kickers meet Navy in a second division match at 7:30.

All other teams are idle, including Victoria United of the Pacific Coast League. United's next game will be an Anderson Cup semifinal match, probably Jan. 3.

Holiday Treat For Hoop Fans

The basketball fraternity steps up to offer a "holiday special."

It's designed to give fans more than their money's worth. Four high school tournament games, an InterCity Senior "A" League attraction and outstanding half-time entertainment will be spotlighted at Central Junior High tonight and Saturday.

STARTS TONIGHT

First-round games in a four-team tournament for the Bob Whyte Trophy start off tonight. At 7 p.m., Courtenay will face Claremont while Nanaimo meets Oak Bay's defending champions at 8:30.

Losers play off in the consolation final at 6:30 Saturday while the winners meet for the trophy at 7:30 p.m.

Ken King's Haida Chiefs will tackle the Inter-City League-leading Alberni Athletics at 9. Intermission entertainment each night will be provided by the "Courtiers," a Tacoma high school group that performs fancy ball-handling routines in the fashion of the famed Harlem Globetrotters.

Contract Signed

TOKYO (AP)—Eddie Perkins of Chicago, world junior welterweight champion, and challenger Yoshinori Takahashi of Japan have signed a contract for their title fight scheduled Jan. 4. Takahashi is ranked third among the world junior welterweights.

MILAN, Italy—Carlos Duran, 197 Argentine, outpointed Jo Bel, 195 Japanese, 10.

HOLDING RUNNERUP

Ptak Home First In Holiday Swim

Fifteen-year-old Rod Ptak topped an 11-man field Wednesday to win the 44th annual Christmas Day swim in the Inner Harbor.

Ptak edged last year's winner, Monty Holding, 19, in the 50-yard handicap event.

Trev Cole, a coach with the sponsoring Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, was third.

All 11 starters finished the chilly race. Medals to all competitors and the Capt. Harbord Trophy to Ptak were presented by Times' columnist Hal Malone.

President's Cup To Crimson Tide

Victoria's Crimson Tide defeated the President's XV 20-0, and that shutout result hardly indicates that Thursday's rugby match at Macdonald Park was the most entertaining Boxing Day fixtures in years.

Tide were worthy winners, but both teams impressed with their wide-open play. Despite sloppy ground conditions, ball handling was superb.

Four tries and four conversions made up for Tide's 20-point total.

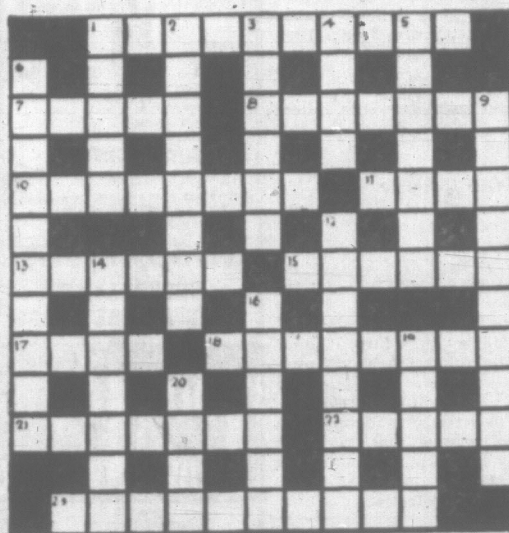

Finest scoring run of the day, a solo effort, was scored by Allan Rees, who converted his

SOLUTION MONDAY

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to William H. Davenport, age 11, of Russellville, Ky., for his question:

What is a mouse deer?

He is one of the smallest of the ruminants, or cud-chewing animals, and he enjoys a quiet and secret life in the tropical jungles of Asia and Africa. His common name is the mouse deer, though he is not a true deer and certainly not a mouse. He is called more correctly the chevrontain, and many different species of chevrontain are classed in the family Tragulidae, a scientific name which means the little-goats.

The dainty chevrontain has goat hooves, but no goat horns or beard. He stands at shoulder level one foot high.

and his body is no longer than 20 inches. He has no tail to speak of, and his small head tapers to a pointed nose. His little face is set off with a pair of big bright eyes and topped with a pair of alert, round ears.

The chevrontain's coat is brown, and his sides are marked with white or buff spots and perhaps a long, light stripe or two. Mr. Mouse Deer may have a pair of tusky teeth which poke down from his upper jaw. The timid little fellow is defenseless against snakes and lizards and all the other hungry carnivores of the jungle.

Hides in Hollow Logs

He sleeps by day, hiding in crevices and hollow logs. At dusk, he comes forth to feed, walking stiffly on his slender legs and always ready to take cover from his enemies. He can climb the lower branches of the trees, and if he is an African mouse deer, he can escape into the water, for he is a champion swimmer and diver.

The mouse deer, no bigger than a hare, is a vegetarian. His diet includes greenery, fruit, nuts and berries. His voice is a feeble bleat like the cry of a very small lamb. It is easy to tame him, and the little cutie never wants to leave his human friends to return to the wild.

Adult chevrontains live their lonely lives in solitude. Mrs. Chevrontain usually gives birth to a pair of twins each year. While they are growing up, the youngsters stay with mama, and she teaches them the tricks they must know to make a living and keep out of trouble. Soon they are ready to go their separate ways, and Mrs. Chevrontain, alias Mrs. Deer, returns to her solitary life in the jungle.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Jerrie Rebeck, age 11, of Manitoba, B.C., Canada, for her question:

How many times a minute does a plant breathe?

A plant does not breathe in and out as you do. It has no lungs or nose to inhale and exhale its air. Instead, it has tiny pores called stomata all over its leaves and stems. The air seeps in and out through these miniature doorways. A few air molecules are going in while a few are coming out.

The air that gets inside the plant circulates among the living cells. They take the oxygen they need and return their waste carbon dioxide to the circulating gases. In time, the carbon dioxide reaches the little air pores and seeps through to join the air outdoors. Meantime, more fresh air bearing oxygen is entering the plant.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—This time of year seems right for this story. Paul de Kruif, the veteran science writer, long an agnostic, discloses in a new book about personal religious philosophies that he has become a believer in prayer—that he labored at his desk for four years just starting to compose a prayer that has brought comfort to him.

"The word God is one that for 50 years I had only used in profanity," says de Kruif, author of "Microbe Hunters" and other books, and former roving editor for The Readers Digest.

But some conversations he had with a unidentified friend who was a member of Alcoholics Anonymous—"a post-graduate from the gutter"—started him to praying although "for my first 50 years I could not pray."

TURNING POINT

"Why? Simply because science could not prove to me there was any God to pray to." "Half-ashamed, I made a first stuttering attempt to pray. For me, this was life's turning point."

Now nearing 73, living in the tulip city, Holland, Mich., de Kruif tells how he switched from the scientists' viewpoint to a religious philosophy in a book titled "Faith Is a Star," edited by Roland Gammon, for Dutton.

His friend from Alcoholics Anonymous "radiated reliability," he made promises and kept all of them, de Kruif says. And de Kruif, a Ph.D. graduate in bacteriology and virology from the University of Michigan who had written "Man Against Death" and "The Fight for Life," admired the man and asked, "What's your secret weapon?"

"Just prayer," the alcoholic answered.

"You mean you pray to God?" de Kruif exclaimed, astonished.

"Now secretly"—after they'd talked it over—"I began to pray," writes de Kruif. But he didn't like any prayers he'd heard or read. "The writing man in me told me they lacked rhythm."

"DARED AT LAST"

He began trying to write a personal prayer... he figured out his own weaknesses and how to ask to overcome them. He admitted he had vanity... hypocrisy... he was a buck-passer... he was supposed to be pig-hearted but he knew the generosity was often for his own advantage... he was not an alcoholic, but his conscience wasn't strong; it was flabby... Finally after lots of years of writing on his one prayer, "I dared at last to join these fragments together."

De Kruif doesn't urge anybody to use his prayer; all should make their own, he says. But here is the one composed by the man who's been close to science all his life and made the change:

God, help me this day to do what's right—Thy will, not mine, be done—help me to learn better what it's right to do;

and then do it, no matter what the pain—help me now to fight vain thoughts; and to think only what all may know—help me always to blame myself; and to give without thought of return Dear God... make strong my faith in Thee... Thy will, not mine, be done."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Eddie Fisher's helping raise money for the U.S. Olympic team and Debbie Reynolds is one of his volunteer workers.

Leslie Uggams, youngest entertainer ever to star at the Persian Room (she's 23), said at the exciting premiere: "This program will be 'Songs I Never Sang on the Mitch Miller Show'—while Mitch sat ring-side, beaming... Jack Carter's giving a Christmas party for British entertainers now on B'way... Joe E. Lewis saw photos of the damage done by the L.A. dam break and grumbled, "I always knew water wasn't good for you."

WISH I'D SAID THAT:

Description of a sloppy B'way character: "His closet would be messy even if he lived in a nudist camp."

REMEMBERED QUOTE:

"Strange that in our prayers we seldom ask for a change of character, but always a change of circumstances."—Anon.

EARL'S PEARLS: In the Saloon Set, you're considered an outdoor person if you walk to the garage. Jerry Lewis' dad, Danny, was asking friends if they thought his voice was as good as it used to be. "Let's put it this way, Danny," said Eli Basse. "—you're in no danger of being kidnapped." That's earl, brother.

Bradley Never Had Such a Christmas!

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bradley McDonald had never seen so many cards and presents.

They came from all over Canada, from the United States, and from Europe.

And they all thrilled an excited little five-year-old whose life is expected to be taken by leukemia before he sees another Christmas.

Bradley came out of hospital to be home with his family for Christmas. His mother said today that he may have to go back soon after a checkup Monday, although his condition is "not bad at the moment."

The plight of the youngster came to international attention recently through a picture distributed by The Canadian and The Associated Press, showing Bradley with his father, Gordon, 35, after the father's release from prison.

McDonald was sentenced to six months for theft after stealing money from an employer to buy toys, clothes and pay medical bills for his boy. He said he intended to pay the money back.

A six-month sentence was cut off at one month by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

Among Bradley's presents was a $100 money order and citation from a unit of the U.S. Army in Hanau, Germany.

It reads:

"We, the bulldogs of Airmobile Company, 503rd Aviation Battalion, do hereby appoint BRADLEY McDONALD as Honorary Bulldog Helicopter Pilot."

Cash donations, which have approached $700, will be used by the McDonalds for medical treatment.

New Planes, Nuclear Role Mark RCAF's 1963 Career

Three events of international significance highlighted RCAF activities in 1963, according to the official year-end review. They are:

- The re-equipping of RCAF squadrons in Europe with the CF-104 supersonic Starfighter aircraft and training their pilots in the new strike and reconnaissance roles.
- The nuclear agreement between Canada and the United States, signed in August, permits the acquisition of nuclear weapons for the 1st Air Division in Europe, for the Bomarc squadrons at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., and for the CF101B Voodoo interceptor squadrons in Canada.
- The official opening on Sept. 26th of North America's first "hardened" Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) control centre near North Bay, Ont.

In September, when the North Bay SAGE site was officially opened, it became the first fully operational underground installation of its kind in North America.

The RCAF also took over operation of the last of 11 U.S. manned Pinetree Line radar sites in Canada at Lowther, Ont., on June 26. Some of these sites, along with some of the Mid-Canada and DEW Line, feed information to the SAGE site at North Bay.

In Europe the RCAF role in NATO changed from an air defence role to strike and reconnaissance roles. During the year, six squadrons — two in France and four in Germany — were re-equipped with CF-104 Starfighter aircraft. Two more squadrons are slated to be similarly equipped next year bringing the total to eight squadrons within 1 Air Division.

The RCAF's two Comet jet transport aircraft were retired from service in October and

Long Mercy Flight

EDMONTON (CP)—Signalman George Young of Toronto was in "much better condition" today in an air force hospital in suburban Edmonton. The young soldier was flown here from Alert, N.W.T., by the RCAF after a report that he was suffering appendicitis. However, the exact nature of his illness was not disclosed. The 4,450-mile flight was completed early Thursday.

THE SHOE MAN

MAYFAIR SHOPPING CENTRE

FRANCE's only living marshal, Alphonse Juin, 75, was reported "clearly improved" today following a stroke. Juin was rushed to hospital in Paris Wednesday after his seizure.

Diesel Turns Over

WINNIPEG (CP)—The lead diesel engine of the Canadian National railways' eastbound Super Continental left the rails and turned over Thursday about four miles east of the station here. There were no injuries. A CN spokesman said the crew of three and "about 100 passengers" in the 12-cars, which remained upright after sliding to a stop, were uninjured.

WHAT HOPE FOR HUMANITY ANYWHERE? Martian Clouds Earth-Type Smog

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is new evidence that the planet Mars is crossed by great yellow clouds of toxic smog.

If so, it could mean that earth's last chance of finding a life-supporting planet in this solar system is gone.

Some astronomers have conjectured that the yellowish clouds seen on Mars are mostly dust and the planet's whites and blues have been associated with snow and water.

But Drs. Sebastian Karrer and Carl C. Kless reported today evidence that the clouds are mostly gases of compounds of oxygen and nitrogen—the same eye-burning, choking, toxic gases of earth-bound smog.

SPLIT RAYS

They split the light from the planet's telescopic image by powerful spectroscopic techniques and found the pattern that is yielded by the gas nitrogen dioxide.

Nitrogen dioxide—a partnership of one nitrogen atom and two of oxygen—appears yellow—and in dense concentrations looks brownish yellow, changing to blue and white in frozen forms.

Scientists, intent on searching the distant world for signs of life, have looked for traces of water suggested by the changing color patterns and blues and whites on the planet.

Karrer is a chemical consultant, a pioneer in the early processes that enabled U.S. industry to reap nitrogen from the atmosphere where it makes up some 78 per cent of the earth's gases. Kless is an astronomer at Georgetown College Observatory.

DISCUSS CHANGES

Before a meeting of the American Astronomical Society, they presented a paper discussing the properties of a number of nitrogen-oxygen compounds and their changing relationships and colors as they warm and cool.

They plan to create laboratory "mists" of nitrogen tetroxide particles to simulate what they believe to be possible conditions on Mars.

Kless said they believe that many of the phenomena of the appearance through earth telescopes can be explained by changes in the nature and color of nitrogen and oxygen compounds under changing temperatures.

Arthur Mayse

In these lost but pleasant days before New Year's, I like to give our trout gear a leisurely putting to rights.

Not the salmon tackle. That heavier, coarser equipment is in use both summer and winter, and we never lay it away.

But by late October the trout tackle has been stowed in higgledy-piggledy confusion, flies unsorted and leaders still . . . disgracefully . . . looped to their parent lines.

The year brings other interests and demands. Until Christmas is over, the water-brooks receive scant thought.

Then, out for a breath of air, we spot snowdrops well-sprouted, and know our incredibly early Island spring is almost upon us.

So out of their brief retirement come the creels that can stand re-vamishing, the rods with frayed windings, the waders with the obscure leak I never got around to patching while the streams ran at summer level.

This job of going over the trout tackle, if job it can be called, is the laziest I know. Why hurry, when we won't be using the stuff until March?

Over a repair so simple as tightening the screws of a reel-seat, I can fish a mile of good trout water in retrospect.

That English reel was my father's once. He picked it up at an auction in Nanaimo, used it hard for the rest of his angler's lifetime, and left it to me. It was on his rod when he tumbled off a log jam on a lone-foray, and broke a wrist.

Since fishermen rarely come back to camp at the appointed time, I didn't begin to worry about him until sunset was past.

An hour later, with the shadows thickening, I still wasn't truly concerned. He must have run into good sport up by Little Oyster where the big summer-run cutthroat trout lazed in the rock basins, and lingered there. Still, it wouldn't hurt to stroll up the old logging grade and meet him coming down.

One mile lengthened into two, and still the dusk hadn't released the familiar, stocky figure I now yearned to see. I cut through to the river by an overgrown grade . . . saw movement close ahead in the dusk and whistled.

My answer was a startled

grunt. The black bear that reared out of the tag alder and tall thistles looked big as a locomotive in the uncertain light. He stared, paws dangling, and I stared too. Then he dropped to all fours and went wallowing off into the alder swamp. I hurried on, with frequent backward glances, to the river.

By owl-light, it was less friendly than the daytime stream. Its voice seemed louder, the ripples swifter and deeper.

I trudged out across a freshet bar, and away downstream, glimpsed movement. Someone or something was wading along a shallow reach. I yelled, but got no answer.

The wader disappeared around a bend. I started to follow. Around the bend, I glimpsed him again, and knew him for my truant father; no other man could gallop at such a pace down a river.

I tried to catch him up. He flitted ahead, not hearing my whistlings and hollerings over the din of the fast water. It became a night-mare sort of pursuit. Where I couldn't wade, I swam, but still he kept his lead.

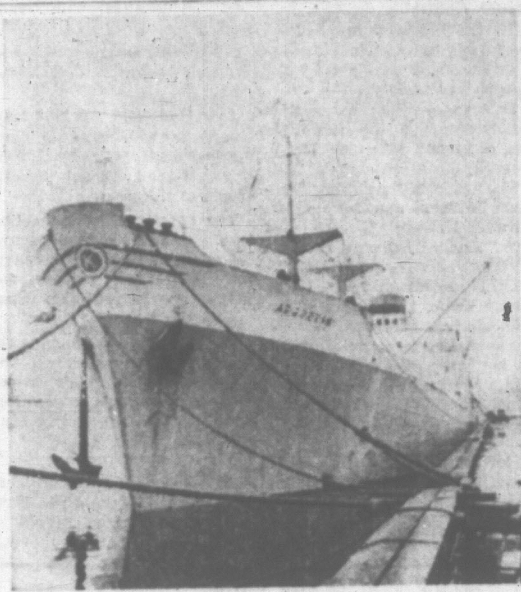

When I squelched into camp, winded and dripping, he had poked up the fire, and sat in its light with pipe between his teeth.

With one hand, he was checking and testing his fly reel, the good English spool I will one day pass on to my own son. His other forearm rested across his knees.

It was crudely splinted with bark slabs held in place by strips torn from a bandana.

His worry was all for the reel he'd banded in his fall. After all, a broken bone mends easier than a wrench with the plates bent and the innards full of sand.

He was a better fisherman than I. He kept his tackle in order all year round; and when I slip that worn and misused trout reel from its case at the heel of a wet December, I can all but hear him growling a reproach over my shoulder.

Argo beam at rest after beating from sea.

Monster Wave Slams Ship; Hatch Rips, Wheat Soaked

By MONTE ROBERTS

The story of a near-tragedy at sea off the west coast Christmas Eve was told here today by Capt. T. E. J. Maratos, master of the 10,000-ton British freighter Argo beam.

Outbound from Vancouver for Japan with a full cargo of wheat, the Argo beam was hit by a monstrous sea that ripped open a battered-down hatch, sheared away 30 feet of steel bulkhead, shattered five half-inch thick plate glass port holes, and forced the ship almost on her beam ends.

One more like it, and, to judge from experiences of other ships, that would likely have been the end of the Argo beam.

"But there was just the one wave," Capt. Maratos said aboard his ship in Esquimalt Harbor, where she is being repaired. "I saw it coming, fast, off the port beam. I guess it would be 45 to 50 feet high."

"It was not like the other waves, which were turbulent but more or less regular."

"KEPT COMING"

"This wave had a curling top, but it was not breaking. There was no spray blowing off the top. It just kept coming and coming."

"What did I do? Nothing much, because there was nothing much that could be done. We were already at half speed—it was the usual foul weather for this time of year—and I rang down to slow. Then the wave hit."

Tons of water hit the ship just forward of the midcastle.

BULWARK on starboard side, from foreground of photo to workman at rear, "chewed out" by force of wave, was first of damages to be repaired at Esquimalt Harbor today.

No. 3 hatch was smashed open as the wave continued across the deck and literally chewed out 30 feet of braced steel bulkhead.

The wave struck as the ship was wallowing along off the west coast of Vancouver Island, in the Tofino area. The chief mate, John Petropoulos, was attempting to rest in his cabin, on the port side of the ship, the direction from which the wave struck.

"I'D BE DEAD"

"I wasn't sleeping. It was too rough to sleep. I was curled up against the forward bulkhead, just to one side of the porthole. Then the wave crashed down. The porthole blew in. Pieces of glass flew by me. If I had been on my berth facing the porthole—the way I usually sleep—I'd be dead."

The chief engineer, too, had a narrow escape. He was in the saloon when three portholes blew in, shattering splinters of glass about the room. One splinter ended deep in the wall only inches from the chief's head.

"SOME DAMAGE"

The captain decided to take the course of safety, and messaged that he had suffered "some damage" and would return to the nearest port where repairs could be made. Search and Rescue at Vancouver advised him to make for Esquimalt, and dispatched the coast

EX-VICTORIANS KILLED IN ONT. CRASH

Former Victorians Mr. and Mrs. John Davis died within an hour of each other in an Ontario Christmas Eve traffic accident.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Owen Sound.

Both Mr. Davis and his wife — the former Betty Miller — were native Victorians.

They had been living in Watertown, Ontario, for some years, and were on their way to visit a daughter in Owen Sound when the accident occurred.

The mother and two brothers, Jack and Don, survive Mrs. Davis here.

Loggers Rescue Fossil Hunter

Agonies Endured After Fall

By DESMOND BILL

A 25-year-old UBC student spent an agonizing Christmas Eve in the bush near Jordan River after he fell out of a tree and broke his hip while fossil hunting.

Jordan River loggers slogged in darkness and blinding rain all through the night to bring Frans Van Netten, 461 Chesterfield, out to a waiting ambulance.

He endured agonies as he was carried out on a basket-stretcher but he never showed it. The exhausted loggers were amazed at his courage.

Today he explained it. "I believe in God. I knew He would look after me. I had no reason to be scared."

Went for Help

Van Netten lay for several hours, propped up against a tree, while his brother Christian, 22, went looking for help. A companion, Harold Popma, 21, of 3301 Quadra, stayed with him and kept a fire going until the rescue party arrived.

The three men went fossil hunting near Sandcut Creek Christmas Eve and couldn't find their way back. Frans climbed a 15-foot tree to find out where they were.

As he got to the top a dead branch broke under him and he fell to the ground. He couldn't get up.

By 8 p.m. a party made up of Bob Lajeunesse, Walter McGinnis, Tom Muir, Fred Mantic, Norman Pederson and Bert Soderberg had arrived from Jordan River. They were hurriedly rounded up to help by Ole Dale, superintendent of Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Co. Ltd.

Slashed Trail

The men hoisted Van Netten in a basket stretcher and started to trek out. They had to cut a trail ahead of them as they moved.

Said Van Netten today: "It was hellish. I was hurting all the time and every so often the bottom of the stretcher would hit a stump underneath."

By midnight the loggers were exhausted. Two of them went on ahead to get extra help and early in the morning 13 more Jordan River men went back into the bush to help in the rescue.

Van Netten never let out a murmur, according to his rescuers. He lay immobile in the stretcher as they trudged along in a rainstorm through the darkness.

Ambulance Waiting

West Coast Ambulance stood by all through the night waiting for the injured man to come out. Driver was Jubiel Wickheim and the attendant was Roy Montgomery.

The rescue party finally got to the highway at 6 a.m. Van Netten was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where he is reported today in good condition.

Van Netten had tremendous praise for his rescuers. "I spoiled their Christmas but they were all in good spirits. As soon as I get well I want to go back and thank them."

Van Netten, a pre-medical student at UBC, came to Canada from Holland six and one-half years ago.

Will this stop him fossil hunting? "No, it won't. But I'm not going to climb any more trees."

Safe in hospital bed is student, Frans Van Netten.

MOON MEASURE TUESDAY

Four 'Dustmen' Cross Fingers

By LESLIE MILLIN

Four Harvard men are sitting on Little Saanich Mountain at great public expense with their fingers crossed.

"In fact," says astronomer Dr. Andrew Young, "they're about as crossed as they can get."

They're hoping to beat the odds—and have clear, unclouded, unobscured, dry weather in the early hours of next Tuesday morning.

"Even the smallest amount of rain or haze will be a major problem to our project," Dr. Young told the Times today. Their project: to discover the relative thickness of the moon's dust coating.

MEASURE HEAT

They plan to do this by long-distance measuring of the heat of the moon's surface when the earth's shadow cuts off sunlight during a total eclipse.

The next such will be from 12:25 to 5:48 a.m. Tuesday. "The temperature of the moon's surface drops rapidly during an eclipse," explains Dr. Young, "about 200 degrees in an hour or so."

"This can only happen if the surface is not solid, otherwise the moon's heat would keep the surface warm."

"We've discovered recently that there are certain places where the dust is thin, that the layer isn't all an even thickness."

"We suspect that these are newish craters, and we think we've got a way to measure the relative thickness of the dust—where it's a fraction of an inch thick, and where it might be many feet thick."

With 1,000 pounds of infrared equipment brought along with them, the Harvard team will measure relative heat in various spots on the moon's surface.

"The places that stay hot longest are the places with the thinnest dust—they think."

NASA PAYS

Idle curiosity is not all that is involved.

Dr. Young points out that the whole project is being paid for by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration of the United States.

NASA wants to know where the dust is thin, because when they get around to landing instruments and astronauts on the moon, they don't want to land them in 40 feet of fine dust.

"NASA wants to know what amount of dust will have to be coped with up there," says Dr. Young.

"They're quite concerned." Although the moon's surface is usually referred to as dust, it may not be.

HARD SPONGE

Dr. Young says it may be something like a hard sponge—"anyway we know it's a good insulating material."

Hooked up by the Harvard team to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory's telescope is a radiation pyrometer, a doodad developed by Hector Ingrao, an engineer team member.

Also along are electronics engineer Joseph Berry, and assistant Michael Snowden.

COMPROMISE

Victoria is a compromise site for the project.

Best viewing would be in Hawaii, but its astronomical facilities are too limited.

Japan would be good, but too far.

Harvard's own observatory is located so that the eclipse will be just on the horizon—the wrong angle.

With weather inclement right up and down the Pacific seaboard—the best viewing part of the continent—the choice went to the large telescope that was available longest.

That was Victoria's observatory.

So here they are, with radiation pyrometer at the ready—and crossed fingers.

TOPICS of the DAY

A burglar made an attempt to crack the safe at Christ Church Cathedral over Christmas Night.

The intruder entered the Cathedral by removing a lead-in window.

Police said the break-in looked like the work of amateurs.

More than $1,000 worth of equipment was stolen during the Christmas holiday from the home of H. Dunster, 2081 Arbutus.

Missing from the house is a stereo set, camera, sewing machine and vacuum cleaner.

A $35 camera and an $85 television set was stolen sometime Christmas Eve from the home of Mrs. Langley, 1518 Oakcrest.

A 14-year-old girl is reported today in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after being hit by a car as she walked along Craigflower Road on Boxing Day.

JoAnne Lane, 931 Forsyth, was admitted with facial and wrist injuries.

Esquimalt police said driver of the car involved was William Chandler, 241 Glenarlie Drive.

A hit-and-run driver who caused a second accident while trying to escape from the scene of the first was fined $250 in city magistrate's court today.

Clarence H. Book, 1020 Catherine, also lost his licence.

He ran into the rear of a stopped car on Johnson Christmas Eve, reversed and swerved to the curb lane. In doing so he hit another car, according to police evidence.

Book took off but was followed by two motorists. He abandoned his car but was caught later at his home.

Police said Book at first denied being in the accidents but later admitted it. He caused a total of $475 damage to the other vehicles.

Red Cross has announced it will hold two blood donor clinics in the beginning of 1964.

First is scheduled for Jan. 2 at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Second clinic will be held Jan. 3 at HMC Dockyard from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

A group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Island View Beach.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Christ Church Cathedral will hold an auction sale in aid of its mission funds in the Memorial Hall on Saturday, Feb. 29. Air Commodore V. H. Patriarche is in charge of arrangements.

Directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce will hold their first meeting of the New Year in the Empress Hotel on Friday, Jan. 17, at noon.

A night watchman at the Empress Hotel was slugged on the head and knocked unconscious when he investigated a noise on a fire escape early Christmas morning.

Joseph Barlow, 18, of 2340 Arbutus, was checking the fifth floor when he heard a sound on the fire escape. He stepped out on it and immediately was knocked out.

Mr. Barlow was unconscious for about 20 minutes after the attack, police said. He did not see his attacker. Nothing was disturbed at the hotel.

The chief engineer, too, had a narrow escape. He was in the saloon when three portholes blew in, shattering splinters of glass about the room. One splinter ended deep in the wall only inches from the chief's head.

Fairfield Jeweller Dies at 52

Well-known Fairfield Jeweller Gordon McWilliam Goodfellow died in hospital early Tuesday.

He was 52. Born in Winnipeg, he had lived here for 17 years.

Owner of Fairfield Jewellery, he was a member of the Esquimalt Lions Club, the Scottish Rite, and the Britannia Lodge.

Surviving are the widow, Catriona, 313 Cook; a son, James, of Victoria; a daughter, Mrs. G. Rutherford, South Burnaby; and three grandchildren.

Funeral will be Saturday at 3 p.m. at Chaplin's Funeral Chapel.

Young Legislators Set for 4-Day Session

Seventy-three members of the Older Boys' Parliament of B.C. registered at the Legislative Buildings this afternoon prior to tonight's formal opening.

The young men represent church young people's groups and other young Christian movements from throughout the province.

First session will get underway at 8 p.m. at the Buildings with opening ceremonies and the throne speech by "Lieutenant-Governor" Rev. W. S. Taylor, D.D., principal of Union College at the University of British Columbia.

Other sittings will be held Saturday at 2 and 8 p.m. and Monday at 2 and 8 p.m. Proclamation will be Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Morning devotional services will be held in First United Church Saturday through Tuesday.

Theme of the 33rd session of the parliament is "The Older Boy and His Church."

The 73 members represent seven religious denominations. "Premier" is Rick Higgs, 20; "Opposition Leader" is Currie Grass, 20, and "Speaker" is Ed Nicholson, 20. All are from Vancouver.

Among the six Victorians participating is Brian A. Smith, 17, of 2555 Lincoln Road, who holds the mental welfare promotion portfolio.

He is a first-year Arts student at UVIC and represented B.C. at the parliament's national conference in Ottawa in July.

There are four sons Vernon, Saskatoon; Bud, Prince Albert; Robert, Calgary; Lorne, Victoria, and one daughter, Mrs. Herb (Dorothy) Salmon, Victoria. The couple also has 15 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. All will be present at the family gathering which will be followed with an "at home" at 8 p.m. in the same hall for friends and neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Dallin were married at Frohisher, Sask., in 1903, and homesteaded near there until 1934 when they came to Victoria.

Extra Darts Correct Hang of Front of Coat

"Dear Eunice:

"I am in the process of making a coat and am very disturbed because the front edges swing to the sides instead of hanging nice and straight. Is there any way to correct this?" Mrs. B.R.

Dear Mrs. B.R.: It is very difficult to diagnose problems such as yours without seeing the coat, however, I think I can give you a remedy that will correct this. This often happens when a woman is full-busted and the coat pattern has very small darts. (Remember how often I have told you that the larger your bust measurement, the more dart control you will need?)

Try taking a much deeper dart at the underarm, or if there is no underarm dart, make one just opposite the fullest part of the bust.

This should swing the side front of the coat up, which in turn usually makes the fronts hang perfectly straight. Don't be alarmed because the side seams come out a little uneven—they can be straightened when the hem is marked.

Victoria Man Wed in Vancouver

Following a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii, Mr. and Mrs. Gary John Webb will make their home in Vancouver, where the groom will resume his studies at the University of British Columbia.

The couple was married on Saturday afternoon in a double-ring ceremony in First Baptist Church in Vancouver.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums decorated the church for the ceremony at which Dr. J. Gordon James officiated.

The bride is the former Vera Joan Livesey, daughter of Mr. Ernest Edward Livesey and Mrs. Adelia Frances Livesey, both of Vancouver. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Percy Webb, 3329 Keats Street, Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length white French peau de sole gown which was styled with a slight train and enhanced with French appliques.

Her short bouffant veil pouffed from a peau de sole pillbox headpiece and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses. The two attendants, Misses Diane Wiper and Wendy Hocking, both of Victoria, wore A-line gowns of deep red velvet with shoes en tone, white kid gloves and red velvet "wedding ring" headbands with small veils.

All carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums with seasonal trim.

John Hadsfield was best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with holly by Hubert Williston and Daniel Soberg, cousin of the groom.

The Faculty Club at the University of British Columbia was decorated in holiday theme of red and green flowers and foliage for the reception which followed.

A three-tier wedding cake topped with a white bell and decorated with pink roses, centred the bride's table. Red roses and festive greenery completed the table decorations.

Anyone needing additional storage space should not overlook the roominess offered by bedroom chests and hampers.

Christmas Day Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Longmore, of Fairfield Road, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Christmas Day, with a quiet dinner at Oak Bay Beach Hotel. They were married 50 years ago on Christmas Day in Windsor, Ont., and spent the next six years in Regina when Mr. Longmore was travelling for a drug company. In 1919, he bought a drug business in Swift Current, Sask., and operated this until 1946, when he sold. The Longmores spent the next year in Florida, North Carolina and in Vancouver, and then came to Victoria to make their home. Mr. Longmore, now over 80, still plays 12 holes of golf daily, the year round, and with the same foursome he started at Uplands, 14 years ago. The Longmores have two daughters, Mrs. F. G. Warder (Phyllis), Swift Current, Sask., and Mrs. J. L. McFayden (Mary Ann), in Montreal. There are five grandchildren.

First Function in City

A New Year's Eve dance in the gymnasium at Work Point Barracks will be the first social affair to be attended in Victoria by riflemen and corporals of the First Battalion, the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, and their wives, since the battalion's return from Germany. Affair will begin at 9 p.m. and feature dancing to the music of Peter Thompson's band, a midnight buffet supper, door prizes and other novelties. The battalion has extended invitations to naval personnel of HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard to their initial function in the city.

A Family Reunion

The Christmas holiday saw a reunion at the Robertson Street home of Alderman and Mrs. Millard Mooney with Mr. Mooney and his brothers and sisters together around the Christmas dinner table for the first time in 11 years. Mrs. Jim Kealey (Greene) came from Lumsden, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Jones (Allee) and Miss Edna Mooney, from Regina; Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Kirby (Clara), from Creelman, Sask.; Mr. Jack Mooney, of Victoria, rounded out the family party.

George H. Hall of Victoria has been visiting in San Francisco and signed the register there.

House Guests

Mr. and Mrs. J. Manson have had at their Hampshire Road home over the Christmas holiday, their three grandchildren and their father, Mr. E. G. Humphreys of Vancouver; a daughter Gloria of Duncan, who is celebrating a 21st birthday this week and Mr. Jack Baker of Australia.

Ontario Group

Forty-five members of the Ontario Social Group of Victoria enjoyed a turkey dinner at their annual banquet in the Nugent Cafe recently, followed by an evening of motion pictures. Seated at the head table were Mrs. George Balfour, the president; Harold V. O'Reilly, treasurer; Dr. and Mrs. F. O. Gilbert and Mrs. H. A. MacDonnell.

Unusual Reunion

The Interurban Road home of Mrs. R. Overbeck was scene of an unusual reunion tea recently with 10 babies as guests of honor. Affair marked the reunion of the May-June 1963 Victorian Order of Nursing pre-natal class. Co-hostess was Mrs. H. Slots.

Barry Gough Married In Mainland Ceremony

Canadian Memorial United Church in Vancouver was setting for the ceremony in which Barbara Louise Kerr became the bride of Barry Morton Gough. Rev. R. W. Henderson officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. James MacIntyre Kerr of Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. John Gough of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a toe-length gown of silk and wool in candlelight white shade that was styled with a A-line skirt and a graceful back panel that floated from the shoulders.

A delicate border of beaded Alencon lace accented the slightly scooped neckline. The bouffant veil of candlelight white illusion net was held in place with a bow that matched the bridal gown. White roses and stephanotis formed her bouquet.

Short-length gowns of jewel green silk and wool, styled like the bride's, were chosen by matron of honor Mrs. William F. Sparks, Penticton, the bride's sister, and bridesmaid.

Serviteurs were Mrs. H. B. Crowe, the Misses Diane Overbeck and Shelly Diakow. A special guest was class instructor, Miss Betty Short. Other guests included Mrs. R. Willey, Mrs. W. Hausberg, Mrs. G. Allen, Mrs. B. Adams, Mrs. L. Eastwood, Mrs. R. Knapp, Mrs. K. Reid and Mrs. D. Pemberton. Unable to attend were Mrs. R. Carley and Mrs. J. Zelmar. Babies ranged in age from six-week-old Kenneth Reid to six-month-old Brian Adams.

Sign Book

Several Victorians were among those who signed the visitors' book at British Columbia House in London, England, during the past few days. They were Mr. and Mrs. W. White, Mr. Richard B. Warburton, Mr. Phil Molnar and Mr. Albert E. Cameron. Also signing were Mr. and Mrs. J. Noble of Uxuelet.

From Winnipeg

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Robertson of Winnipeg are spending the holiday season with Mr. Robertson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Ovas, in their Evelyn Place home. While here they will visit old Winnipeg friends and Mr. Robertson's other sister, Mrs. S. R. O'Dell. They will return to Manitoba early in January.

Although they enjoyed their three-year stay in the Finnish capital of Helsinki, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Wardroper are delighted to be back in Victoria for the holiday season. Seen with them in the Howe Street home of Mrs. Wardroper's mother, Alderman Mrs. Lily Wilson, are their two sons, Lawrence Duncan, five, and 18-month-old Andrew Wilson.

Snow—Who Misses It!

Any snow we have around Victoria this holiday is of the synthetic variety but Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Wardroper don't mind a bit. They've seen plenty of the real stuff in their three-year stay in Finland's Helsinki where Mr. Wardroper was counsellor at the Canadian embassy.

"When we left there in November we'd already had the first freeze and snow."

Not that they didn't like their stay in the small country that borders Russia.

"It's a beautiful country. Most of the modern trends in architecture began in Finland. In addition to gorgeous apartment buildings, there are all sorts of old buildings, all in exquisite taste. It's impossible to find a slum in that country."

Mr. Wardroper emphasizes the role of the Canadian embassy in that country. "Finland is so close to Russia that it's imperative she maintain her contact with the West as much as possible."

Like Canada, Finland is bilingual, with her people speaking Finnish and Swedish. Mrs. Wardroper confesses that her linguistic ability is confined to, "kitchen Finnish — useful for speaking to children, maids and dogs!"

Pink and Blue

Gifts were arranged under a pink and blue umbrella when fellow classmates of Royal Jubilee Hospital's school of nursing, class of 1962, entertained at a shower in the Savory Road home of Mrs. Jon S. Parker in honor of bride-elect Miss Linda Marrion. Pink candles in silver candelabra, chrysanthemums and holly centred the refreshment table. Guests included Mrs. D. W. Woodrow, Mrs. Charles Nicholson, Mrs. Derek Chambers, Mrs. Ron Jacob, Mrs. Brian Weatherhead, Mrs. Robert Marwood, Mrs. W. C. Jones, the Misses Jennifer Groos, Beryl Galland, Maureen Herrington and Joy Anderson, Masters Bruce and Mark Chambers.

Irish Visitor

A visitor from Ireland, Mrs. L. H. Tyrrell, was honor guest at meeting of the Arbutus Toastmistress Club, held in the Blue Room. An associate member of a toastmaster club in Dublin, Mrs. Tyrrell, spoke on toastmistress activities in Ireland. Other guests included Mrs. J. J. Warr, president of the Victoria Toastmistress Club and five fellow members.

Introduced by Mrs. D. L. Campbell, topic mistress, Mrs. H. L. Beigham chose a holiday motif as table topic. Theme for the evening was "Appreciation." Toastmistress, Miss H. Jewell, was introduced by Mrs. S. McCulloch.

Mrs. J. Roberts, Mrs. A. G. Higgs, Mrs. W. A. Ludlow, Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge, Mrs. E. Mansley took part in a parliamentary skit. There were four speeches—three impromptu and one extemporaneous—given by Mrs. A. V. Drew, Mrs. G. Love, Miss M. Kennedy and Mrs. H. Winstone.

General evaluator, past president, Mrs. J. W. Gillis, awarded the spur to Mrs. Love and oscar to Mrs. Drew.

Clubwomen's News

Institute Study—Salt Spring Island Women's Institute, under leadership of Miss V. Sallis, cultural convener, has undertaken a study of British Columbia Indians. It was decided at a recent meeting to send donations to the Solarium, the children's hospital and to other funds. Tea hostesses were Mrs. M. Gyves and Mrs. E. A. Anderson.

Five Hampers—Members of the Alden Hamper Chapter, IOOE, brought groceries and toys for five hampers to meeting, held in the home of Mrs. Esther Pitkethley. Mrs. Graham Harris, services at home and abroad, was voted $50 to buy turkeys and other trimmings for the hampers. A length of dress material was sent to a young girl in Malta. Mrs. J. W. Dalgleish reported $145 realized from sale of coffee to night school students; educational secretary, Mrs. John S. White, announced a reading award established at chapter's adopted school at Telkwa. Sum of $50 was voted to buy books for the University of Victoria's library. Miss Peggy Dodimead, formerly of Chilliwack, was welcomed as a new member. Christmas refreshments were served by Miss Peggy MacNeill.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Did you plan to wear it over or under your red flannels?"

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. "A muscle of one leg is not as large as the other. This is quite noticeable. How can I develop the smaller calf? The other isn't too large."

A. Do the following exercise. Stand with your left side toward the wall and place your right leg against the wall. Rise as high as possible on your right leg, letting your right leg hang. Lower left heel to floor. Continue. If your right leg is the smaller one, turn your right side toward the wall, place your right hand on the wall and raise high on your right leg, letting the left leg hang. Continue. Do this about 10 times the first day, working up to 25 times, morning and night.

Q. "I have a problem which embarrasses me terribly. When I'm with a group of people at a dinner or even downtown or when people come to see me, my neck gets a sort of redness almost like a rash and my cheeks get flushed. What could cause this? Could it be lack of some vitamin?"

A. Since this happens only when you are with people, it seems certain that the flushing and redness come from nervousness. You are evidently shy and self-conscious. Some folks perspire excessively when under emotional tension. Try to turn your thought outward. When you are with others concentrate on how they look and what they are saying. Make a practice of this. Do this deliberately and you will find it fascinating and you will probably forget about yourself.

Q. "I am 15 years old, 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weight 102 pounds. Am I underweight? I never eat breakfast or lunch because I never get hungry. I might add that I am a coffee fiend and smoke a lot. Is there anything wrong with me because I don't eat breakfast or lunch?"

A. There is something definitely wrong with your head to act in such a foolish way. You certainly must be intelligent enough to know that you are ruining your health and your looks. If this hasn't already it is only a question of time. Your body is probably so saturated with caffeine and nicotine that your appetite gave up. Then too, your lack of appetite may be due in part to the fact that your stomach has shrunk and become smaller because of so little food. It can't hold much and does not cry for food because of hollowness.

You are not terribly underweight, only about 10 pounds. You probably use cream and sugar in your coffee, which accounts for this. Fine nutrition is important at any age.

Satin Rose Corsages Given

A shower was held recently for Miss Linda Marrior, by Miss Joan Sands at her home on McRae Avenue. A corsage of white satin roses was presented to the bride-elect, a corsage of blue roses to her mother, Mrs. H. H. Marrior, and a corsage of gold roses to her grandmother, Mrs. T. J. Marrior. Gifts were in a model high-rise apartment building. Refreshments were served from a lace-covered buffet table, centred with a miniature bride, white chrysanthemums and white candles. The guests present were Miss Linda Marrior, Mrs. H. H. Marrior, Mrs. T. J. Marrior, Mrs. J. Baker, Mrs. W. Yeaman, Mrs. J. Metcalfe, Mrs. A. Nichol, Mrs. R. Shaw, Mrs. M. Callister, Mrs. G. Laird, Mrs. J. Shafer, Mrs. R. Cleaton, Mrs. R. Uehelson, Mrs. K. Mills, Mrs. J. Bartlett, Mrs. W. Heagle, Mrs. F. Heywood, Mrs. J. Saul, Mrs. J. Blanshard, Mrs. G. Sands, Mrs. R. Hartshorn, Mrs. G. Sales, Mrs. R. Dunkley, Mrs. P. Sands, Misses Joan and Frances Sands.

SIDING

How does "FOREST" compare with other sidings?

Its greater thickness adds structural strength to the building. Its snug "back to the wall" fitting makes for warmth and fast application... because it goes on like shiplap. The greater volume of "FOREST" siding gives a high insulation value.

When stain is applied to sawn-textured (sometimes known as rough faced)
"FOREST" siding the distinctive character of the knots, burl and grain is emphasized. Stains come in a variety of colors such as Maplewood, Mahogany,
Redwood, Cedar, Wheat
Tone and Flamingo. Main-

Recognition Dinner on Monday Planned by 'Inter-Denom' Group

Victoria group of the Inter-Denominational Council of Young Christians will hold a recognition dinner Monday at 6:30 p.m. at Holyrood House.

Purpose of the dinner is to make young people more aware of how they can serve Christ through their occupations, and to recognize council members now doing this in their chosen fields.

Guest speaker will be 19-year-old Earl Speakman, a Christian liberal arts student at Grand Canyon Theological College, Phoenix, Arizona.

Earl is a member of Douglas Street Baptist Church and was one of the organizers of the young people's interdenominational council when it formed in Victoria last March.

The local branch is a member of a nation-wide organization and is made up of teenagers and young adults.

"We have full representation from all Christian groups in Victoria," said president Rick Warrington, 17.

BULLETIN
"We also publish a monthly bulletin which has a circulation of 1,100."

Some budgets still are not in line.
Unable to collect local taxes and unable to get loans without a government guarantee - not forthcoming until budgets have been approved - some ran out of money.

Arrangements were made by Quebec to pay six teachers of the Sault-au-Mouton after they left classes last week, saying they would not return until their November and December salaries had been paid.

Twenty teachers at Les Es-couplets, another small community about 145 miles northeast of Quebec City, returned to work after a one-day stoppage to get back salaries. A bank loan solved this situation, too.

Eight more French-language Roman Catholic school boards in the Lake St. John region 160 miles northwest of Quebec City have been unable to pay teachers for varying periods.

These groups are trying to make a compromise on school tax rates. The government has worked out a formula to standardize rates across the province, and has set individual rates based on property evaluation methods and other factors to make sure each community is contributing its share.

Some boards have tried to have the increases graduated over the next few years. Others have flatly refused to put them into effect, claiming taxpayers can't bear the load.

Schools at St. Tite-des-Caps and St. Fereol, about 80 miles northeast of here, were closed in November after taxpayers

SOME BUDGETS LATE School boards are supposed to place their forecast budget in the hands of the government
July 1, but this year hesitancy in raising tax rates has meant

LAW IN THREE PROVINCES
50-Year-Old Act Offsets
Clutch of Moneylenders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
An English law, formed at the beginning of the century primarily to prevent prospective heirs being cheated out of their fortunes, is effectively protecting two-fifths of Canada's population from the clutches of greedy moneylenders.

It was adopted as a two-part legislation by the Ontario government 50 years ago to set interest rates as well as protect borrowers from harsh deals by wily financiers.

Later the Dominion assumed complete responsibility for interest rates and the province continued with the section dealing with harsh bargains.

In 1950 it was named the Unconscionable Transactions Relief Act and now it guards against spurious financial dealings in Ontario, Newfoundland, and Nova Scotia.

Its power was challenged last year when an Ontario Court of Appeal ruled it invalid. The Supreme Court of Canada this week reversed the verdict in a 5-2 decision and ruled it valid, deeming the act the responsibility of the provincial government.

The British government passed the Money Lenders Act in 1900 after 33 years without control on financial transactions or interest charges in the country.

It was intended to stamp out deals by cunning money-lenders who were lending at exorbitant rates - money to be lent to heirs while their inheritance was being processed.

Nova Scotia's act, passed in 1938, varies somewhat from the Ontario legislation, whereas Newfoundland's 1962 act is patterned directly on it.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows the remaining three-fifths of Canada is either being served by acts of lesser power or, in five provinces, none at all.

The combined population of Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick - 1,655,000 persons - is not protected by any provincial act.
They are virtually at the mercy of loan sharks, mortgage brokers and time-payment companies.

More than 7,000,000 persons in Quebec and British Columbia are also susceptible to bad financial bargains, but both legislatures are expected to introduce soon an act similar to Ontario's.

Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick have no intention of creating such an act, while the province of Saskatchewan is unhurriedly working to frame legislation that would require disclosure of the "effective rates of interest" - the actual dollar amount any individual will pay per year or per month on his time purchase. There is little public interest in the move.

Under the Unconscionable Transactions Act, courts are empowered to strike out certain sections of contracts

"The idea of Inter-Denom is to start at the roots and foster the idea of Christian unity with the young people of various denominations," said Doug Wedman, 20, who will be master of ceremonies at the dinner.

OPEN TO PUBLIC
The dinner will be open to the public and anyone wishing further information can contact Wedman at 383-2420.

The Victoria group also will host an Island interdenominational young peoples conference here February 21-22.

GETS BANK LOAN
Last week, St. Tite - its local revenue coming in slowly - went through the government to arrange a $30,000 bank loan to pay back wages. St. Fereol got a second $10,000 loan to do the same.

This year the 1,600 school boards are expected to spend $453,000,000 but revenue will be $376,000,000. The gap between revenues and expenses is expected to grow to $178,000,000 by 1966-67.

The province now devotes 20 per cent of its $1,000,000,000 budget to education.

The expenditure is paying off.
High school enrolment has jumped from 204,772 pupils in 1960-61 to 302,000 this year.
There will be 400,600 pupils in Quebec high schools by 1967.

By then, present financial troubles should be worked out.
Government spokesman says property taxes have just about reached the limit and the only source of additional revenue is in taxation powers now held by the federal government.

Quebec gained an additional $42,000,000 in such taxation power at the recent federal-provincial fiscal conference and will be seeking $100,000,000 more at another to be held here in February.

Remedial Teachers Sought

Greater Victoria teachers have asked for more than twice the number of remedial teachers to be provided for in next year's school budget as are now employed.

School trustees have agreed to budget for up to four additional remedial teachers, which could bring the total in District 61 to 74.

Request was made by W. B.
Osciency, president of Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

Remedial teachers are used in the elementary school system where they take on composed classes which may be composed of children of all grades.

The short term classes are set up to help bring students who have slipped behind back up to the level of others in their class. Often this is due to protracted absence because of illness.

Remedial teaching is distinct from teaching slow learners or retarded children, who attend special classes on a full-time basis.

"I lost my temper," he said.
"What did your wife say?"
the magistrate asked.

"Did she suggest you forget the whole thing?"
"Yes."

"Too bad you didn't take her advice."

Former Soccer
Executive Dies
In Traffic Mishap

VANCOUVER (CP) - An inquest will be held Monday into the traffic death Christmas Eve of John (Joek) Stewart, 75, an executive of the 1940 Canadian soccer championships.

Police said Stewart was walking in an unmarked crosswalk when he was struck and thrown several feet.

He suffered head and leg injuries and died in hospital four hours later.

Stewart was trainer and assistant manager of the B.C.
Electric Radials when they won the Pacific Coast Soccer

Wood Alcohol Kills

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Home-icide detectives are seeking the source of wood alcohol that has killed 20 men in the last four days on Philadelphia's Skid Road.

Dr. Joseph W. Spelman, city medical examiner, said he believed the alcohol came from a single source.

Most of the victims, said Dr. Spelman, were found in rooming houses or hotels. In many of their rooms investigators found liquor bottles containing small amounts of liquid which was 50 to 75 per cent wood alcohol.

Last year, about 20 men were killed in New York City by wood alcohol poisoning.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN? Hand carving on gable end saved from a demolished 80-year-old building is a puzzle to wrecker A. Dee, above, and to new owner of the property, dry-cleaner Peter Margetts. He is saving the relic as an antique and hopes someone can tell him its origin. The gable end was saved from the home of Cliff Ferguson recently wrecked at Douglas and Frances. Mr. Ferguson lived there 75 years and his parents built the house before he was born. The site will be used for a commercial venture not yet fully planned.

Bring Down Wall Pope Urges World

VATICAN CITY (AP)—On Christmas Day, Pope Paul VI urged a divided world to negotiate tirelessly to avoid "the supreme catastrophe — the recourse to arms."

Implicit in his message at a midnight mass was an appeal for negotiations to bring down the Communist wall that separates Berlin.

The Roman Catholic ruler, beginning the first Christmas Day of his papacy, celebrated the mass in the Sistine Chapel for diplomats accredited to the Vatican. His predecessor, John XXIII, had started the Christmas Day in a similar manner.

In perhaps the most stirring peace message since he became pope in June, Paul told the diplomats their governments must sacrifice and undertake even possibly humiliating negotiations to avoid war.

Apparently referring to Berlin, he told the diplomats:

"Is it not your mission, gentlemen, to work to knock down the walls which separate peoples; is it not (your mission) to announce peace to all near and far?"

He followed these words with an appeal for diplomatic negotiation, saying sometimes a nation must "know how to sacrifice a part of its prestige or of its superiority" in the interests of a "superior good."

SUPREME CATASTROPHE

Tireless and even humiliating negotiation, he told the diplomats, must be pursued "to avoid this supreme humiliation, which would be, in the present conditions, the supreme catastrophe: the recourse to arms."

Vatican sources had predicted Monday that Christmas would not pass without the Pope referring to Berlin, where Communist authorities opened the wall for one-way yule traffic by West Berliners to visit relatives in East Berlin.

In his 1,000-word speech the Pope seemed to refer to the wall, although he did not mention Berlin by name.

MAIN SUBJECT

It was his third Christmas speech. Monday night he delivered his Christmas message to the world, urging a peace without an arms race of propaganda. On Tuesday he exchanged holiday greetings with his cardinals and Vatican prelates.

His Holy Land pilgrimage Jan. 4-6 was a main subject in both of the first two speeches. But it was not mentioned in the mid-night mass address.

'Canadian Unions Lack Autonomy'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The business agent of the Vancouver local of an American-based union says he resigned because of lack of Canadian autonomy in the union.

Orville Braaten of local 433 of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CLC) said his resignation becomes effective Jan. 31.

Braaten said he felt that American domination of Canadian trade unions will become a widespread problem in this country.

"There's going to be an explosion in our own union," he predicted.

Said Braaten: "Some time ago we proposed setting up a Canadian district within the confines of the international. This was opposed by the international."

"Knowing there was no move to grant Canadian autonomy, I decided to resign. I found it was hopeless to carry on in the local."

He said that without regional districts, the pulp and sulphite members have no way of meeting to discuss and plan action on Canadian problems.

"The idea of the international seems to be to keep the local unions in small units," Braaten said.

Neighbors Settle Wheat Problems

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—A private meeting between Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman has helped reduce Canada-U.S. tensions caused by differences in wheat-selling policies, a spokesman for Freeman said Tuesday.

The meeting took place here last Friday when, the spokesman said, Sharp opened the talks by acknowledging that Canada's export policies may have caused difficulties for the U.S. in the wheat-selling field.

Freeman, in turn, informed Sharp that the U.S. intends to revise its own procedures in order to compete with the Canadian policies, particularly in the field of bulk forward sales at fixed prices.

SALES TO REDS

Differences between the two countries were accentuated last fall when the United States learned that the Canadian wheat board agreed to sell some 20,000,000 bushels of wheat to Japan, to be delivered during a period of eight months at fixed prices. This followed bulk forward sales by Canada at fixed prices to Communist China and Russia.

The U.S. agriculture department maintained that this procedure constituted unfair competition. Both countries compete for many of the same wheat markets. American wheats sold mainly through private channels with prices fluctuating on a day-to-day basis.

Department spokesmen called a press conference last October to voice threats against Canadian wheat trade. Regular consultative machinery between the two countries on wheat export programs broke down and the state department found it necessary to move in to attempt to control the protests that had arisen in the U.S. agriculture department.

The spokesman said Sharp called on Freeman last Friday afternoon and said he could understand the reasons for the U.S. reactions at that time. The spokesman quoted Sharp as saying there would be no change in Canadian export policies and Freeman informed him the U.S. intends to remain competitive.

The spokesman said both Freeman and Sharp agreed that the changes that had taken place in wheat relations between the two countries are of a permanent nature.

Over the Yuletide Season reach for an Old Vienna

In fact, reach for a goodly supply of this delightful beer. Share it charitably with your guests. OV has a pleasant, festive flavour. That's brought out by blending five kinds of non-bitter, seedless hops. A happy brew. Try it.

Queen Makes Plea For World's Hungry

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth, in a Christmas Day broadcast, said she was happy to know that the people of the Commonwealth had responded so generously to the campaign to free the world from hunger.

She said: "Much has been achieved but there is still much to do, and on this day of reunions and festivities in the glow of Christmas, let us remember that many undernourished people, young and old, scattered throughout the world."

The Queen is expecting a baby, and her relatively brief message, which was recorded, was broadcast this year on sound only.

FUTURE IMPORTANT

"Now, as ever, the important time for mankind is the future. The coming years are full of hope and promise and their course can still be shaped by our will and action."

"The Christmas message of peace on earth, goodwill toward men, remains the same. But we can only achieve this if we are all truly ambitious for what is good and honorable," the Queen said. "Humanity can only make progress by determination and concerted effort."

"One such concerted effort has been the campaign to free the world from hunger."

"I am very happy to know that the people of the Commonwealth have responded so generously to this campaign."

Groos to Talk To Reservists, Shipyard Men

Victoria's MP will hold meetings soon to try and revive two local institutions: the shipyards and HMCS Malahat.

David Groos says he will meet representatives of the 180 Malahat navy reservists Jan. 6 to discuss their fate.

The federal government plans to close down Malahat by the end of March.

Mr. Groos said he hoped Victoria could somehow maintain a reserve unit because it had a fine record.

It was the first reserve unit to go into active service in the First World War, said Mr. Groos, a retired navy captain.

He said the Malahat complement was "100 per cent interested" in staying alive as an unpaid volunteer organization.

AT NADEN

Mr. Groos said he hoped some way could be found to allow the reservists to use facilities at HMCS Naden without any extra cost to taxpayers.

He said the government has agreed to consider any new proposals and he will discuss the whole matter with the reservists.

Mr. Groos will call on officials of the local shipyards early in January.

He wants to help them find new projects to replace the lost navy building program on which they had been counting.

He will wait first, he said, for the defence production department at Ottawa to announce more details about refitting three St. Laurent class destroyers, some of which work could come to the west coast.

But he will also ask the yards for other suggestions to tide them over until a new navy program is decided.

New Rules Approved For Dentists

The B.C. Cabinet has given dentists a new set of house rules—legal ones this time.

A Cabinet order Tuesday approved regulations for the College of Dental Surgeons of B.C.

They include a provision allowing dentists to sign certificates authorizing work by dental technicians.

The previous regulations, which contained no such provision, were declared ultra vires by the B.C. Supreme Court last month.

CONFLICT FEARED

The Cabinet then had omitted the provision because it believed there was conflict with the Dental Technicians' Act.

But under the Dentistry Act, the Cabinet is not permitted to make or change dental regulations except when proposed by the college.

The court ruled that the Cabinet's omission was, in effect, legislation.

A health official said the new regulations will clear up the problem.

Casey Renamed To Court Of Revision

Saanich Coun. Joseph Casey has been re-appointed to the Greater Victoria court of revision by the provincial cabinet despite a controversy surrounding him this year.

He was chairman of the court last spring when it came under severe fire from the intermunicipal committee which objected to the three-man court holding short "day" sessions of as little as 10 minutes when the members were paid $35 per day.

At that time, Coun. Casey said he did not intend serving as a member again.

However, City Hall was notified this morning that the provincial cabinet had appointed Coun. Casey, Alan E. Bigelow and Frank Shandley to the 1963 Greater Victoria Court of Revision.

The court hears ratepayers' appeals from assessment notices on their properties.

The first city session will open at 10 a.m. Feb. 3 in the council chamber.

CARRIER HIT BY FALLOUT

WASHINGTON (AP)—Radio-active fallout from Russia's 1961 nuclear tests in the atmosphere contaminated the giant U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise, it was disclosed Thursday.

The radiation persisted for about a month but did not endanger the health of those of the 86,000-ton nuclear-powered carrier.

The disclosure was made in a current publication of the navy's bureau of medicine and surgery.

Doctors Warned Against Drug Use

LONDON (AP)—British doctors have been warned against giving pregnant women ethionamide, a drug used to treat tuberculosis, saying it may be dangerous to the unborn children.

May and Baker Limited, manufacturers of the drug, found big doses can produce deformities in the offspring of test animals.

R. Wood, general manager of May and Baker, warned doctors in a letter to the pharmaceutical journal but said "the available clinical evidence indicates that those women who have received ethionamide during pregnancy have produced normal infants."

The firm puts out two preparations containing ethionamide—trecatyl and trescazide. Both can be bought without a doctor's prescription, but the firm is making arrangements to have them available only on prescription. A spokesman said the likelihood of the drugs having been bought without being prescribed by a doctor was remote.

In Ottawa, Dr. L. I. Pugsley of the federal food and drug directorate said a similar manufacturer's warning was sent out to Canadian doctors in November.

Dr. Pugsley said ethionamide is not available in Canada except on a doctor's prescription.

FROM KOREAN FRONT TO BERLIN

Prince of Peace Honored

By The Associated Press

At the grim Red wall dividing Berlin tragedy marked the Christmas passes given West Berliners to visit relatives in the eastern sector of the city. Two young East Berliners vaulted the wall to escape to the West. One made it, the other was shot—managing to get over the wall only "to die hours later." (See story page 2.)

Incongruously, Communist loudspeakers blared Bling

Crosby's recording of White Christmas to West Berliners as they crossed at five assigned wall points.

In the bloody jungles and rice paddies of South Viet Nam, the Communist guerrillas called a Christmas Day cease-fire in their fight against the Vietnamese soldiers and their U.S. advisers.

And so the day honoring the Prince of Peace came to a world that has found little peace since the dawn of history.

PRAYERS FOR PEACE

Barriers dividing mankind, from the Berlin wall to the hostile frontiers of the Holy Land, opened for Christmas uniting in Yuletide joy and prayers for peace.

More than 65,000 West Berliners with Communist permission poured through the Red wall for Christmas reunions with relatives isolated for 23 months since the wall went up. Thousands of other pilgrims crossed the fortified Israel-Jordan frontier to kneel at the Bethlehem shrine where Christ was born.

Queen Elizabeth noted a lull in the cold war in her annual Christmas message to the British Commonwealth and added: "Let us remember the many undernourished people, young and old, scattered throughout the world."

Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Britain's ranking Anglican prelate, injected the hope that Pope Paul's pilgrimage to the Holy Land will stimulate Christian unity and discussion of "those matters concerning baptism and mixed marriages where there is injury and trouble."

POPE DISTRIBUTES TOYS

Pope Paul celebrated mass in a poor workers' quarter of Rome, distributed toys and candles to the unfortunate, and reminded Roman Catholic worshippers: "Christmas is the feast of the needy and the poor."

Like most Americans, President Johnson spent Christmas with his family, at their ranch outside Johnson City, Tex.

Western Christians in the two citadels of atheistic communist, Moscow and Peking, improvised services as Christmas went by almost unnoticed around them.

The Russian Orthodox Church celebrates Christmas Jan. 7, according to the Julian calendar, but in a rare sign of warm inter-church relations, Metropolitan Nikodin of the Orthodox Church attended midnight mass with Russian Roman Catholics in Moscow.

The relatively few practising Russian Catholics, mostly older persons, attended services at the Church of St. Louis of the French, the only Roman Catholic church in the Soviet capital.

Snowman in Florida

British Troops Patrol Riot Area in Cyprus

Armed Vigilantes Remain at Posts

Times News Services

NICOSIA, Cyprus—British patrols moved through Nicosia today to keep the peace on explosive Cyprus, but disagreement delayed plans for Greek and Turkish soldiers to join them.

At the southeast port of Larnaca, a British soldier was shot and slightly wounded in the shoulder while on a similar patrol. The patrols are designed primarily for the protection of British civilians.

In Nicosia, however, the British were waved through roadblocks of both Greek and Turkish armed vigilantes, whose fighting in five bloody days beginning last Saturday caused grave international concern.

Commanders of the British, Greek and Turkish garrisons stationed on this eastern Mediterranean island met in the morning but were unable to agree on the composition of the mixed patrols.

"We have British patrols out, whose primary purpose is to protect British families," Maj.-Gen. P. S. F. Young, British army commander on Cyprus, told reporters after the meeting.

Young said there were no Greek and Turkish army patrols out and it would take longer to organize them because of language difficulties.

STAY IN GARRISONS

The small Turkish and Greek army garrisons remained at opposite ends of this capital. Their movement from their treaty bases into Nicosia Christmas Day led to fears of a showdown that might embroil Greece and Turkey, both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Greek and Turkish Cypriots generally have observed the Christmas Day cease-fire, ending a conflict that began Saturday with an exchange of gunfire between a Greek Cypriot police patrol and Turkish Cypriots.

But a few shots still could be heard at times from the north-east sector of the border dividing the Greek and Turkish Cypriot sectors of Nicosia as the first British column entered the Turkish sector.

Meanwhile, the first reinforcements ordered from Britain Thursday by Prime Minister Douglas-Home landed at the British Akrotiri base. Their number was not given. A headquarters spokesman said they will replace troops in the base areas ordered to duty in Nicosia and elsewhere.

Life gradually was returning to normal in the Greek sector.

Mile-Long Procession

LONDON (Reuters)—Nearly 4,000 Turkish Cypriots, among them women carrying children, marched today four abreast to the prime minister's official residence here to hand in a petition calling for an end to violence on Cyprus.

The procession, a mile long, was organized by the Cyprus-Turkish Association in London.

Thousands of angry Greek students paraded through the streets of Athens and Salonica today in support of Greeks currently involved in communal conflict with Turks on Cyprus.

Police in both cities were ordered to stand by to prevent disturbances arising from the rallies.

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—Turkish students protesting against violence in Cyprus marched to the office of Premier Ismet Inonu here today and shouted "annexation or death."

Inonu received a delegation and told them to be calm.

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass news agency accused the British today of trying to take over Cyprus and asserted events on that troubled island threaten "a serious international conflict."

The article bore the dateline of Nicosia but as is usual in these cases, probably represented the work of the agency editorial board in adding semi-official comment.

The article said the British commander demanded that all Greek and Turkish police and troops on the divided island surrender their arms. It added: "The aim of this order is clear: To disarm not only the terrorists but also the security forces of the republic. They want to make the Makarios government a captive of the British colonialists and of the most aggressive NATO forces."

FREIGHTER OVERDUE 6 DAYS; 50 ABOARD

MADRID (AP)—Spanish authorities issued an alarm today for the 7,072-ton Spanish freighter Castillo de Montjuich, six days overdue on a voyage from Boston to La Coruna.

Between 40 and 50 men were aboard the ship. The Spanish cruiser Canarias and two frigates searched the Atlantic for the ship.

U.S. Licences Wheat Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. commerce department has issued conditional licences for the sale of $40,600,000 worth of wheat to Russia but whether there will be an agreement remains to be seen.

The two licences — for $20,300,000 each — were issued Thursday to two unnamed American firms.

Unofficially described as "hunting licences," they allow the sale of the U.S. grain provided various conditions are met. These conditions, under announced U.S. government policy, include stipulations on financial and shipping terms.

If the Soviet Union agrees to these terms, then the two U.S. companies have permission to go through with the sale, a commerce department spokesman said.

Nearly three months ago, the late President Kennedy gave a green light to proposed private sales of U.S. wheat to Russia. Soviet negotiators, however, have been balking at the American terms.

The Russians have objected particularly to the U.S. requirement that part of the grain be shipped on U.S. vessels, whose rates are higher than the world market price.

The U.S. traders who applied for the licences were said to have indicated that the Russians were proposing to pay cash. This would appear to rule out complications over extending credit to them, although the licences did not specifically require cash on the barrelhead.

A foreign aid bill provision which could have had the effect of requiring cash for a wheat sale to the Communists was voted down by the House of Representatives Tuesday only after a stiff fight in which President Johnson placed his prestige on the line.

If a U.S. trader now wants a U.S. government guarantee of credit extended to a Communist bloc buyer, officials said, the president could approve it if he finds it to be in the national interest.

But the shipping requirement has been the bigger stumbling block in the lengthy wheat discussions. The Russians have not made much ado about demanding credit.

The conditional licences arm the U.S. traders with evidence for the Russians that they are serious about working out a transaction.

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian-U.S. agreement to provide greater safety at times of peak air traffic along the international boundary was announced here today. Under it, air traffic control services in either nation may be extended to 50 miles beyond the border when conditions warrant.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet met today for what Prime Minister Pearson said is likely to be a day-long session, its second since Parliament prorogued last week-end.

Mr. Pearson, looking rested after a five-day Christmas holiday, said there may be announcements late today but nothing of great significance.

He joked with reporters about the possibilities of a cabinet shuffle, saying there would be none today. "I haven't been reading the papers over the holiday and there's been a good deal of speculation about it. Until I find out what you expect me to do, how can I know what to do?"

He said there may be some appointments. There won't be any new senators named. There are five vacancies in the Senate.

He said he expected the cabinet session to continue into the afternoon and "I may have more to say then."

Mr. Pearson spent the Christmas holiday in the Toronto area with his daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren and proudly told reporters he was playing hockey two days ago on skates.

WASHINGTON PLANS PROTEST

U.S. Embassy Stoned By 3,000 Bulgarians

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced it "is making a strong protest" and demanding compensation for the damage a mob of 3,000 Bulgarians caused at the U.S. legation in Sofia today.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (Reuters)—An estimated 3,000 shouting and booing Bulgarians demonstrated outside the U.S. legation here today, smashing most of the windows on the first three floors and overturning four American diplomatic cars.

The rioters were eventually dispersed by local militiamen. The hour-long demonstration, which began at 11 a.m., was in protest against alleged American intelligence activity revealed in the spy trial of a former diplomat which began here Thursday.

The demonstrators shouted anti-American slogans and pelted the front windows of the legation in the heart of the city with ice, frozen snow and stones.

The crowd numbered about 500 at the start but grew to around 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, a U.S. legation official said.

"The demonstrators made no attempt to enter the legation and nobody in the legation was hurt," he said.

He also said Americans he met during his espionage activities were "idiots" when it came to understanding Communist countries.

At one point, Georgiev asked: "How is it possible that I betrayed my country? How is it possible that I could not find the courage to go back again to my fellow countrymen and patriots?"

"This is why I decided to confess everything, everything."

LONDON FOG CUTS TRAFFIC TO CRAWL

LONDON (CP)—Dense fog today reduced road traffic to a crawl in and around London and visibility over a wide area of southern England was down to as low as 10 yards.

Many incoming flights to London Airport were diverted and all departing services were delayed. Trains were running behind schedule in many places.

Fog and ice were blamed for many highway accidents which took the highest Christmas toll in four years—at least 41 dead since Christmas Eve.

In Holland, dense fog brought shipping and air travel to a standstill and roads were slippery after a severe morning frost.

'Last-Hope' Treatment For Child

AJACCIO, Corsica (Reuters)—A French doctor today authorized a local healer to give a "last hope" treatment to a four-year-old leukemia-stricken British boy.

The boy, Edward Burke, and his mother arrived Sunday to seek the help of the healer, Gaston Maessens, who claims to have developed a serum to treat the disease.

British Vice-Consul William Snook, who said earlier the boy would have to return home if no doctor was found to authorize the arrangement, said the treatment would begin this afternoon and last 40 days.

Maessens is a biologist and has no doctor's degree.

Thursday night more than 3,000 demonstrators marched to the home of the local chief administrative officer, Andre Dusserres, in protest against the failure of any doctor to authorize the treatment.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1963

Arthur Mayse

In these lost but pleasant days before New Year's, I like to give our trout gear a leisurely putting to rights.

Not the salmon tackle. That heavier, coarser equipment is in use both summer and winter, and we lay it away.

But by late October the trout tackle has been stowed in higgledy-piggledy confusion, flies unsorted and leaders still . . . disgracefully . . . looped to their parent lines.

The year brings other interests and demands. Until Christmas is over, the water-brooks receive scant thought.

Then, out for a breath of air, we spot snowdrops well-sprouted, and know our incredibly early island spring is almost upon us.

So out of their brief retirement come the creels that can stand re-varnishing, the rods with frayed windings, the waders with the obscure leak I never got around to patching while the streams ran at summer level.

This job of going over the trout tackle, if job it can be called, is the laziest I know. Why hurry, when we won't be using the stuff until March?

Over a repair so simple as tightening the screws of a reel-seat, I can fish a mile of good trout water in retrospect.

That English reel was my father's once. He picked it up at an auction in Nanaimo, used it hard for the rest of his angler's lifetime, and left it to me. It was on his rod when he tumbled off a log jam on a lone foray, and broke a wrist.

Since fishermen rarely come back to camp at the appointed time, I didn't begin to worry about him until sunset, was past.

An hour later, with the shadows thickening, I still wasn't truly concerned. He must have run into good sport up by Little Oyster where the big summer-run cutthroat trout lazed in the rock basins, and lingered there. Still, it wouldn't hurt to stroll up the old logging grade and meet him coming down.

One mile lengthened into two, and still the dusk hadn't released the familiar, stocky figure I now yearned to see. I cut through to the river by an overgrown grade . . . saw movement close ahead in the dusk and whistled.

My answer was a startled

grunt. The black bear that reared out of the tag alder and tall thistles looked big as a locomotive in the uncertain light. He stared, paws dangling, and I stared too. Then he dropped to all fours and went walloping off into the alder swamp. I hurried on, with frequent backward glances, to the river.

By owl-light, it was less friendly than the daytime stream. Its voice seemed louder, the ripples swifter and deeper.

I trudged out across a freshet bar, and away downstream, glimpsed movement. Someone or something was wading along a shallow reach. I yelled, but got no answer.

The wader disappeared around a bend. I started to follow. Around the bend, I glimpsed him again, and knew him for my truant father; no other man could gallop at such a pace down a river.

I tried to catch him up. He flitted ahead, not hearing my whistlings and hollerings over the din of the fast water. It became a night-mare sort of pursuit. Where I couldn't wade, I swam, but still he kept his lead.

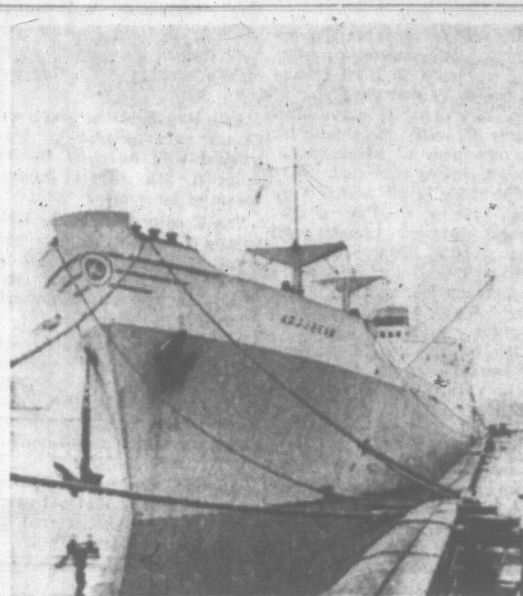

When I squelched into camp, winded and dripping, he had poked up the fire, and sat in its light with pipe between his teeth.

With one hand, he was checking and testing his fly reel, the good English spool I will one day pass on to my own son. His other forearm rested across his knees.

It was crudely splinted with bark slabs held in place by strips torn from a bandana.

His worry was all for the reel he'd banged in his fall. After all, a broken bone mends easier than a wince with the plates bent and the innards full of sand.

He was a better fisherman than I. He kept his tackle in order all year round; and when I slip that worn and misused trout reel from its case at the heel of a wet December, I can all but hear him growling a reproach over my shoulder.

Argobeam at rest after beating from sea.

Monster Wave Slams Ship; Hatch Rips, Wheat Soaked

By MONTE ROBERTS

The story of a near-tragedy at sea off the west coast Christmas Eve was told here today by Capt. T. E. J. Maratos, master of the 10,000-ton British freighter Argobeam.

Outbound from Vancouver for Japan with a full cargo of wheat, the Argobeam was hit by a monstrous sea that ripped open a battened-down hatch, sheared away 30 feet of steel bulkhead, shattered five half-inch thick plate glass port holes, and forced the ship almost on her beam ends.

One more like it, and, to judge from experiences of other ships, that would likely have been the end of the Argobeam. "But there was just the one wave," Capt. Maratos said aboard his ship in Esquimalt Harbor, where she is being repaired. "I saw it coming, fast, off the port beam. I guess it would be 45 to 50 feet high."

"KEPT COMING" "This wave had a curling top, but it was not breaking. There was no spray blowing off the top. It just kept coming and coming."

"What did I do? Nothing much, because there was nothing much that could be done. We were already at half speed—it was the usual foul weather for this time of year—and I rang down to slow. Then the wave hit."

Tons of water hit the ship just forward of the midcastle.

BULKHEAD on starboard side, from foreground of photo to workman at rear, "chewed out" by force of wave, was first of damages to be repaired at Esquimalt Harbor today.

No. 3 hatch was smashed open as the wave continued across the deck and literally chewed out 30 feet of braced steel bulkhead.

The wave struck as the ship was wallowing along off the west coast of Vancouver Island, in the Tofino area. The chief mate, John Petropoulos, was attempting to rest in his cabin, on the port side of the ship, the direction from which the wave struck.

"I'D BE DEAD" "I wasn't sleeping. It was too rough to sleep. I was curled up against the forward bulkhead, just to one side of the porthole. Then the wave crashed down. The porthole blew in. Pieces of glass flew by me. If I had been on my berth facing the porthole—the way I usually sleep—I'd be dead."

The chief engineer, too, had a narrow escape. He was in the saloon when three portholes blew in, shattering splinters of glass about the room. One splinter ended deep in the wall only inches from the chief's head.

"SOME DAMAGE" The captain decided to take the course of safety, and messaged that he had suffered "some damage" and would return to the nearest port where repairs could be made. Search and Rescue at Vancouver advised him to make for Esquimalt, and dispatched the coast

EX-VICTORIANS KILLED IN ONT. CRASH

Former Victorians Mr. and Mrs. John Davis died within an hour of each other in an Ontario Christmas Eve traffic accident.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Owen Sound.

Both Mr. Davis and his wife—the former Betty Miller—were native Victorians.

They had been living in Watertown, Ontario, for some years, and were on their way to visit a daughter in Owen Sound when the accident occurred.

Surviving Mr. Davis is a sister, Mrs. Doreen Sanders, of Victoria.

The mother and two brothers, Jack and Don, survive Mrs. Davis here.

Agonies Endured After Fall

By DESMOND BILL

A 25-year-old UBC student spent an agonizing Christmas Eve in the bush near Jordan River after he fell out of a tree and broke his hip while fossil hunting.

Jordan River loggers slogged in darkness and blinding rain all through the night to bring Frans Van Netten, 461, Chesterfield, out to a waiting ambulance.

He endured agonies as he was carried out on a basket-stretcher but he never showed it. The exhausted loggers were amazed at his courage.

Today he explained it. "I believe in God. I knew He would look after me. I had no reason to be scared."

Went for Help

Van Netten lay for several hours, propped up against a tree, while his brother Christian, 22, went looking for help. A companion, Harold Popma, 21, of 3301 Quadra, stayed with him and kept a fire going until the rescue party arrived.

The three men went fossil hunting near Sandcreek Creek Christmas Eve and couldn't find their way back. Frans climbed a 15-foot tree to find out where they were.

As he got to the top a dead branch broke under him and he fell to the ground. He couldn't get up.

By 8 p.m. a party made up of Bob Lajeunesse, Walter McGinnis, Tom Muir, Fred Mantic, Norman Pederson and Bert Soderberg had arrived from Jordan River. They were hurriedly rounded up to help by Ole Dale, superintendent of Canadian Puget Sound Logging Co.

Slashed Trail

The men hoisted Van Netten in a basket stretcher and started to trek out. They had to cut a trail ahead of them as they moved.

Said Van Netten today: "It was hellish. I was hurting all the time and every so often the bottom of the stretcher would hit a stump underneath."

By midnight the loggers were exhausted. Two of them went on ahead to get extra help and early in the morning 12 more Jordan River men went back into the bush to help in the rescue.

Van Netten never let out a murmur, according to his rescuers. He lay immobile in the stretcher as they trudged along in a rainstorm through the darkness.

Ambulance Waiting

West Coast Ambulance stood by all through the night waiting for the injured man to come out. Driver was Jubial Wickham and the attendant was Roy Montgomery.

The rescue party finally got to the highway at 6 a.m. Van Netten was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where he is reported today in good condition.

Van Netten had tremendous praise for his rescuers. "I spoiled their Christmas but they were all in good spirits. As soon as I get well I want to go back and thank them."

Van Netten, a pre-medical student at UBC, came to Canada from Holland six and one-half years ago.

Will this stop him fossil hunting? "No, it won't. But I'm not going to climb any more trees."

Safe in hospital bed is student, Frans Van Netten.

MOON MEASURE TUESDAY

Four 'Dustmen' Cross Fingers

Four Harvard men are sitting on Little Saanich Mountain at great public expense—with their fingers crossed.

"In fact," says astronomer Dr. Andrew Young, "they're about as crossed as they can get."

They're hoping to beat the odds—and have clear, unclouded, unmissed, dry weather in the early hours of next Tuesday morning.

"Even the smallest amount of rain or haze will be a major problem to our project," Dr. Young told the Times today.

Their project: to discover the relative thickness of the moon's dust coating.

They plan to do this by long-distance measuring of the heat of the moon's surface when the earth's shadow cuts off sunlight during a total eclipse.

The next such will be from 12:25 to 5:48 a.m. Tuesday.

"The temperature of the moon's surface drops rapidly during an eclipse," explains Dr. Young, "about 200 degrees in an hour or so."

"This can only happen if the surface is not solid, otherwise the moon's heat would keep the surface warm."

"We've discovered recently that there are certain places where the dust is thin, that the layer isn't all an even thickness."

"We suspect that these are

newish craters, and we think we've got a way to measure the relative thickness of the dust—where it's a fraction of an inch thick, and where it might be many feet thick."

With 1,000 pounds of infrared equipment brought along with them, the Harvard team will measure relative heat in various spots on the moon's surface.

The places that stay hot longest are the places with the thinnest dust—they think.

NASA PAYS Idle curiosity is not all that is involved.

Dr. Young points out that the whole project is being paid for by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration of the United States.

NASA wants to know where the dust is thin, because when they get around to landing instruments and astronauts on the moon, they don't want to land them in 40 feet of fine dust.

"NASA wants to know what amount of dust will have to be coped with up there," says Dr. Young.

"They're quite concerned." Although the moon's surface is usually referred to as dust, it may not be.

HARD SPONGE

Dr. Young says it may be something like a hard sponge—"anyway we know it's a good insulating material."

Hooked up by the Harvard team to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory's telescope is a radiation pyrometer, a doodad developed by Hector Ingrao, an engineer team member.

Also along are electronics engineer Joseph Berry, and assistant Michael Snowden.

Victoria is a compromise site for the project.

Best viewing would be in Hawaii, but its astronomical facilities are too limited. Japan would be good, but too far.

Harvard's own observatory is located so that the eclipse will be just on the horizon—the wrong angle.

With weather inclement right up and down the Pacific seaboard—the best viewing part of the continent—the choice went to the large telescope that was available longest.

That was Victoria's observatory.

So here they are, with radiation pyrometer at the ready—and crossed fingers.

City Taxi Driver Forfeits Cab On Liquor Charge

A city taxi driver was sent to jail for six months on Christmas Eve after he was convicted on two charges of bootlegging.

Normand Rouleau, 1526 Cook, also lost his cab. It was ordered forfeited to the Crown after evidence showed it had been used in bootlegging operations.

Evidence showed that Rouleau obtained two bottles of liquor for two plainclothes policemen who hired his cab Nov. 3. Three days later the same officers again met Rouleau and told him they were looking for more booze.

He took them to the cab office and returned to the car with the liquor they asked for. Rouleau told the court that he made no money out of the transactions. "I only deliver," he said.

Young Legislators Set for 4-Day Session

Seventy-three members of the Older Boys' Parliament of B.C. registered at the Legislative Buildings this afternoon prior to tonight's formal opening.

The young men represent church young people's groups and other young Christian movements from throughout the province.

First session will get underway at 8 p.m. at the Buildings with opening ceremonies and the throne speech by "Lieutenant-Governor" Rev. W. S. Taylor, D.D., principal of Union College at the University of British Columbia.

Other sittings will be held Saturday at 2 and 8 p.m. and Monday at 2 and 8 p.m. Proclamation will be Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Morning devotional services will be held in First United Church Saturday through Tuesday.

Theme of the 33rd session of the parliament is "The Older Boy and His Church."

The 73 members represent seven religious denominations. "Premier" is Rick Higgs, 20; "Opposition Leader" is Currie Grass, 20, and "Speaker" is Ed Nicholson, All are from Vancouver.

Among the six Victorians participating is Brian A. Smith, 17, of 2395 Lincoln Road, who holds the mental welfare promotion portfolio.

He is a first-year Arts student at UVIC and represented B.C. at the parliament's national conference in Ottawa in July.

Other Victorians are Steve Clark, 17, of 1332 Prospect Place; Roy Hamill, 17, of 1314 Balmoral; Bill Nelson, 16, of 1137 Beldway; Jack Miller, 17, of 4257 Cedar Hill Road, and Steve Holmes, 16, of 1063 Joan Crescent.

Other delegates are mostly from the lower mainland and range in age from 16-20. They will be billeted in private homes during the session.

The parliament operates on the two-party system and bills presented will pertain to promotion of boys' work programs from the local church level to the provincial level.

All sittings will be open to the public.

Soggy Skies To Continue

The soggy month of December will likely remain in character for its last few days, the Victoria weatherman says.

But as it flows down the drain, at least it will be mild.

Temperatures will range from 38 or 40 to 45 during the period.

This is a slight come down from Christmas Day when a balmy 48 was general in this area. The day before Christmas the mercury climbed to 59—setting a new high for the month in recorded weather history.

Victorians can't be as snug as usual, however, because most of Canada had a mild Christmas. Vancouver scored 50, Winnipeg 43, Toronto 31, Halifax 33, Calgary 44 and Edmonton 21—all on the plus side of zero.

TOPICS of the DAY

A burglar made an attempt to crack the safe at Christ Church Cathedral over Christmas Night.

The intruder entered the Cathedral by removing a leaden window.

Police said the break-in looked like the work of amateurs.

More than $1,000 worth of equipment was stolen during the Christmas holiday from the home of H. Dunster, 2681 Arbutus.

Missing from the house is a stereo set, camera, sewing machine and vacuum cleaner.

Ask The Times

Q. When the Czech hockey team played the Olympics here recently I noticed there was no number 13 on the Canadian team. Would this be because of the superstition associated with this number? B.E.S.

A. Yes, athletes are somewhat superstitious about wearing No. 13. Some won't wear a No. 13 sweater and others won't wear any sweater but No. 13.

However, it should be noted this is the preference of individuals and not the team management.

Q. Does BCHS pay a patient's drugs? I.F.

A. British Columbia Hospital Insurance Services will pay for drugs, biologicals and related preparations with the exception of take-home drugs and certain hospital drugs.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve controversies or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

A 14-year-old girl is reported today in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after being hit by a car as she walked along Craigflower Road on Boxing Day.

JoAnne Lane, 931 Forshaw, was admitted with facial and wrist injuries.

Esquimalt police said driver of the car involved was William Chandler, 241 Glenairle Drive.

A hit-and-run driver who caused a second accident while trying to escape from the scene of the first was fined $250 in city magistrate's court today.

Clarence H. Book, 1020 Catharines, also lost his licence.

He ran into the rear of a stopped car on Johnson Christmas Eve, reversed and swerved into the curb lane. In doing so he hit another car, according to police evidence.

Book took off but was followed by two motorists. He abandoned his car but was caught later at his home.

Police said Book at first denied being in the accidents but later admitted it. He caused a total of $475 damage to the other vehicles.

Victoria Branch, Canadian Red Cross has announced it will hold two blood donor clinics in the beginning of 1964.

First is scheduled for Jan. 2 at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Second clinic will be held Jan. 3 at HMC Dockyard from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

A group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Island View Beach.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce will hold their first meeting of the New Year in the Empress Hotel on Friday, Jan. 17, at noon.

A night watchman at the Empress Hotel was slugged on the head and knocked unconscious when he investigated a noise on a fire escape early Christmas morning.

Joseph Barlow, 18, of 2340 Arbutus, was checking the fifth floor when he heard a sound on the fire escape. He stepped out on it and immediately was knocked out.

Mr. Barlow was unconscious for about 20 minutes after the attack, police said. He did not see his attacker. Nothing was disturbed at the hotel.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S.-Soviet agreement establishing direct New York-Moscow air service may be signed within 30 days with service starting next summer, Najeeb E. Halaby said today.

The federal aviation administrator, just back from a trip to Moscow where he discussed technical and operational problems involved in a bilateral air agreement, said he expected President Johnson and the state department to decide within a month whether to sign such a pact.

Milk Price Boost in Alberta

CALGARY (CP)—A spokesman for four Calgary dairies predicted today that retail milk prices will be increased in Alberta by one cent a quart.

Hugh John MacDonald, counsel for the dairies, also said he expected a decision of the Alberta Public Utilities Board on retail prices for dairy products should be known early in the new year.

He was commenting on the board's announcement today that it would hike the producer price of milk to $3.10 from $4.82.

Neglect Blamed for Deaths

REGINA (CP)—Five authorities concerned with the welfare of Saskatchewan Indians said today Indian children continually die on reserves in Saskatchewan because of neglect.

Martin Semeluk, CCF member of the legislature for the northwestern constituency of Meadow Lake, said in an interview "Deaths of native children, on and outside reserves, have been going on for years and nothing too effective is being done about it. The problem is an urgent one."

Fire Still Burning
On U.S. Freighter

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP)—Fire broke out on the American freighter President Madison shortly after she steamed out of this port for San Francisco at midnight, the Japanese maritime safety agency said.

The agency said the 7,924-ton American President Line's vessel radioed the outbreak of fire in the No. 4 hold and asked for assistance off the coast of Boso Peninsula about 25 miles out side Tokyo Bay.

There were no reports of casualties among 52 crew and seven passengers, the agency said.

'WORSE' THAN LAKONIA FIRE

MADRID (Reuters) — Capt. Mateos Zarbis, Greek skipper of the ill-fated liner Lakonia, broke down here today as reporters bombarded him with questions. Saying "no more... no more," he sat on a bench and covered his face with his hands. The captain had just landed at Madrid airport from Tenerife, Canary Islands, on his way to Athens.

In the airport, lounge he answered questions about his ship, which caught fire in the north-east Atlantic Sunday night. Latest estimate of the dead is 95, with 31 persons missing.

One of the first questions was where the rescue operations were. Zarbis said: "Partly in the sea, partly in the air."

He was asked to explain what he meant by this statement. He replied:

"If early enough I had had three or four rescue ships alongside the ship then all would have been well. The rescue ships picked up people from the sea but did not come near the Lakonia—that was the drama."

THOUGHT ALL IN SEA

Asked whether he thought the ships did not come in close because of the danger from the fire, Zarbis answered: "No. They probably thought there were no one left on board."

Asked how the disaster happened, Zarbis said: "We do not know how the fire started, but we do know where it started. We controlled it for a long time. I waited an hour and a half before giving the order to abandon ship."

At one point the captain tried to stop the questions by saying, "I am talking too much. This is worse here than it was on the liner."

The behavior of the crew was perfect, he said. Eventually the fire got too big but no one left the ship in the first 1½ hours.

"When we left it was because the fire was pushing us off," he added.

Asked what he thought of complaints made by some passengers, the captain started up angrily and said: "Many passengers came to thank me when we were rescued. Why should they do this if they were dissatisfied?"

He repeated vehemently: "They thanked me."

Wheat
Sales
Licensed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. commerce department has issued conditional licenses for the sale of $40,600,000 worth of wheat to Russia but whether there will be an agreement remains to be seen.

The two licenses — for $20,320,000 each — were issued Thursday to two unnamed American firms.

Unofficially described as "hunting licenses," they allow the sale of the U.S. grain provided various conditions are met. These conditions, under announced U.S. government policy, include stipulations on financial and shipping terms.

If the Soviet Union agrees to these terms, then the two U.S. companies have permission to go through with the sale, a commerce department spokesman said.

Nearly three months ago, the late President Kennedy gave a green light to proposed private sales of U.S. wheat to Russia. Soviet negotiators, however, have been balking at the American terms.

The Russians have objected particularly to the U.S. requirement that part of the grain be shipped on U.S. vessels, whose rates are higher than the world market price.

The U.S. traders who applied for the licenses were said to have indicated that the Russians were proposing to pay cash. This would appear to rule out complications over extending credit to them, although the licenses did not specifically require cash on the barrelhead.

VOTE BILL DOWN

A foreign aid bill provision which could have had the effect of requiring cash for a wheat sale to the Communists was voted down by the House of Representatives Tuesday only after a stiff fight in which President Johnson placed his prestige on the line.

If a U.S. trader now wants a U.S. government guarantee of credit extended to a Communist-bloc buyer, officials said, the president could approve it if he finds it to be in the national interest.

But the shipping requirement has been the bigger stumbling block in the lengthy wheat discussions. The Russians have not made much ado about demanding credit.

The conditional licenses arm the U.S. traders with evidence for the Russians that they are serious about working out a transaction.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced it "is making a strong protest" and demanding compensation for the damage a mob of 3,000 Bulgarians caused at the U.S. legation in Sofia today.

The rioters were eventually dispersed by local militiamen.

The hour-long demonstration, which began at 11 a.m., was in protest against alleged American intelligence activity revealed in the spy trial of a former diplomat which began here Thursday.

The demonstrators shouted anti-American slogans and pelted the front windows of the

legation in the heart of the city with ice, frozen snow and stones.

The crowd numbered about 500 at the start but grew to around 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, a U.S. legation official said.

"The demonstrators made no attempt to enter the legation and nobody in the legation was hurt," he said.

'Last-Hope' Treatment
For Child

AJACCIO, Corsica (Reuters)—A French doctor today authorized a local healer to give a "last hope" treatment to a four-year-old leukemia-stricken British boy.

The boy, Edward Burke, and his mother arrived Sunday to seek the help of the healer, Gaston Maessens, who claims to have developed a serum to treat the disease.

British Vice-Consul William Snook, who said earlier the boy would have to return home if no doctor was found to authorize the arrangement, said the treatment would begin this afternoon and last 40 days.

Maessens is a biologist and has no doctor's degree.

Thursday night more than 3,000 demonstrators marched to the home of the local chief administrative officer, Andre Bussieres, in protest against the failure of any doctor to authorize the treatment.

A former Bulgarian diplomat to the United Nations, who Thursday pleaded guilty to spying for the United States, said today American intelligence flew his mistress from Paris to the U.S. three times during the seven years he was a spy.

Ivan Assen Georgiev, 36, told the court on the second day of his trial the American taxpayer was forced to pay the cost of his "caprice."

He also said Americans he met during his espionage activities were "idiots" when it came to understanding Communist countries.

At one point, Georgiev asked: "How is it possible that I betrayed my country? How is it possible that I could not find the courage to go back again to my fellow countrymen and patriots?"

"This is why I decided to confess everything, everything,"

Pearson Starts
Cabinet Shuffle

Times News Services

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson today announced the resignations of Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier and Postmaster-General Azellus Denis from their seats in Parliament.

Pearson said Chevrier would be appointed to "a high office in the public service," while Denis will be named to the Senate.

There has been speculation that Mr. Chevrier will get one of two top diplomatic posts—either high commissioner to London or ambassador to France.

Both men will remain in the cabinet until their new appointments become effective some time next month. By-elections will be held in their Montreal ridings Feb. 10.

The prime minister told newsmen "one or two" more cabinet changes will be announced in January, but he declined to offer any details at this stage.

He said, however, that they would not necessitate further by-elections, meaning that appointments to the two vacancies or possible shuffling of existing portfolios and not more resignations were involved.

Fill Places for Second Session

Pearson said the resignations of Chevrier and Denis were announced today so that their ridings—Montreal-Laurier and Montreal-St. Denis respectively—could be filled in time for the second session of the 26th Parliament scheduled to begin in mid-February.

"Both will remain in the cabinet until their appointments become effective at a date in January to be announced later," Mr. Pearson told reporters at a press conference following a day-long cabinet meeting.

Their resignations as MPs were submitted Friday to permit issuance of writs for by-elections. They would be the first by-elections since the April 8 general election that brought the minority Liberal government to office.

OTHER CHANGES

Mr. Pearson said that there will be consequential changes and "perhaps one or two other" switches in the cabinet. But there would not be any need for additional by-elections.

The forthcoming cabinet shuffle will be the first change in the ministry Mr. Pearson formed last April 22 when he took over the reins of office from Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Troops Keep Cyprus Peace

Times News Services

NICOSIA, Cyprus—British patrols moved through Nicosia today to keep the peace on explosive Cyprus, but disagreement delayed plans for Greek and Turkish soldiers to join them.

At the southeast port of Larnaca, a British soldier was shot and slightly wounded in the shoulder while on a similar patrol. The patrols are designed primarily for the protection of British civilians.

In Nicosia, however, the British were waved through roadblocks of both Greek and Turkish armed Cypriots, whose fighting in five bloody days beginning last Saturday caused grave international concern.

Commanders of the British, Greek and Turkish garrisons stationed on this eastern Mediterranean island met in the morning but were unable to agree on the composition of the mixed patrols.

Meanwhile, the first reinforcements ordered from Britain Thursday by Prime Minister Douglas-Home landed at the British Akrotiri base. Their number was not given. A headquarters spokesman said they will replace troops in the base areas ordered to duty in Nicosia and elsewhere.

SAM'S HOME!

Twisted Tale of Two Dachshunds Concludes on Tail-Wagging Note

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sam the misplaced Dachshund, travelling as a diplomatic pooch, returned here from Africa today and like the rest of his mixed up experiences caught everyone by surprise.

A change of flight plans saw Sam arriving by trans-Atlantic plane from Conakry, Guinea, two hours and 20 minutes earlier than expected. With no one on hand to meet him, Sam was carted unceremoniously from the plane in a red plaid dog cage, numbered 2056303, and kept in an airline office until his master Maxwell C. Moulton arrived.

Moulton, along with more newsmen and photographers than normally greet arriving dogs, turned up late. The confusion came about when the Dachshund was shipped by an earlier plane from Conakry to New York to Washington.

When Sam waddled out from confinement, he was greeted by a warm pat and a snuggling from Moulton. Overcome by it all, the dog wriggled and wagged his tail.

Sam got his unplanned trip to Africa last Friday when he was mistaken at a dog hospital for Eric, a dachshund owned by James Loeb, U.S. ambassador to Guinea.

There were some bristling moments when Loeb insisted that it was Eric who had been shipped, not Sam. When the identity was cleared up, the state department went to work to get Sam back home.

A departmental official,

Philip A. Heller, was on hand at the airport today to oversee the happy ending to the tale of two dachshunds. He told newsmen the department was very pleased that "this problem has been happily resolved."

PROCESSION

communal conflict with Turks on Cyprus.

Police in both cities were ordered to stand by to prevent disturbances arising from the rallies.

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—Turkish students protesting against violence in Cyprus marched to the office of Premier Ismet Inonu here today and shouted "annexation or death." Inonu received a delegation and told them to be calm.

Tass Charges Takeover

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass news agency accused the British today of trying to take over Cyprus and asserted events on that troubled island threaten "a serious international conflict." The article bore the dateline of Nicosia but as is usual in these cases, probably represented the work of the agency editorial board in adding semi-official comment.

The article said the British commander demanded that all Greek and Turkish police and troops on the divided island surrender their arms. It added:

"The aim of this order is clear: To disarm not only the terrorists but also the security forces of the republic. They want to make the Makarios government a captive of the British colonialists and of the most aggressive NATO forces."

A WORD TO THE WISE FROM JACK BURGESS

It may be news for the young executive type, but most mature men prefer neat, conservative clothing... in classic styling that will not "date" over night. They know the importance of "selling yourself" and they know, too, that this is achieved by those who choose from the made-to-measure suits, slacks or jackets from JACK BURGESS, on Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire Road.

At Jack Burgess' you find the sincere, personalized service that means so much in the choice of suitings, and there are over 1600 samples to choose from... These include the famous Fox Hound worsteds, satin-faced Venetians, rugged Twists and Melange flannels. These normally are priced from $69.95 to $135.00, and now, during the Jack Burgess January Sale, they are all reduced by 20%. There are goodies for the ladies, too, at Jack Burgess' store, on Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire Road.

DESCRIPTIONS ISSUED

Store Robbers Still at Large

NANAIMO—RCMP from Victoria are helping Nanaimo officers investigate the case of the "hush puppy robbers."

The pair escaped with $3,000 midnight after abducting a Safeway store manager at gun point and forcing him to open the safe of his store.

They are still at large.

Police said two men, who did not wear masks but wore silent-walking shoes, but manager George Donaldson in a produce cooler after binding him with tape.

The thugs then tore out the telephone wire and escaped with the money.

Police described the men as being between 20 and 25 and wearing navy blue three-quarter length coats.

CUT ON TEMPLE

One man is six feet tall, has dark hair and a noticeable half-inch cut on the right temple.

The other is about five feet, nine inches, and has dark, curly hair.

Mr. Donaldson said the two men knocked at his motel room door and at gunpoint took him back to the store where they forced him to open the safe in his office.

HAS MANY TRIBES

Kenya has a population of 7,260,000, of whom 98 per cent are Africans split into some 50 tribes.

MSA Signs New Pact With Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP)—Medical Services Association announced Tuesday there will be no increase in premiums despite an increase in fees by doctors.

An average 5.7 per cent increase in medical fees will go into effect Jan. 1.

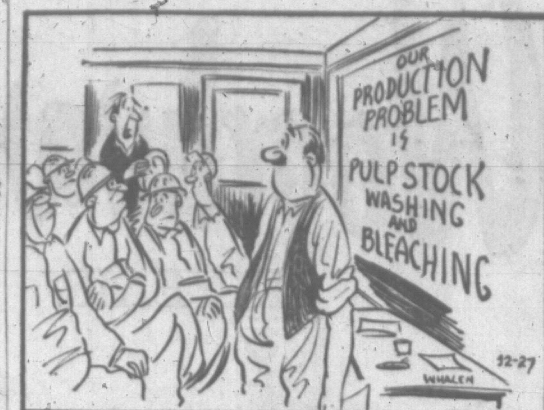

In a statement MSA, the doctors' group medical insurance plan, said agreement has been reached with the B.C. Medical Association covering doctors' fees for three years beginning Jan. 1.

"There will be no increase in MSA members' premiums," said the statement.

"A four-point agreement provides that the new fee schedule as proposed by the doctors will be bound for three years instead of two as provided in the existing agreement."

The agreement establishes a joint committee representing the MSA board of directors and of the medical association to deal with over-servicing and over-utilization.

HARD HATS

"Like ya said — the more heads workin' on a problem, th' quicker th' solution. Well, sir, th' wife came up with sumpin'."

Plans Ordered On $2 Million Comox Hospital

COURTENAY—St. Joseph's Hospital architects here have been ordered to prepare plans for a new $2,000,000 hospital.

The B.C. health department has approved the project.

The 74-bed hospital will be built in front of the present structure which will be demolished.
